Destructive Gale on Saturday in the British Channel.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

BOSTON, Nov. 25.—The Cunard steamship Batavia, Capt. Moulard, arrived at this port today, and reports that on the 19th of November, when in latitude 49° 16' north, longitude 41° 27' west, she fell in with the British bark Charles Ward, of Newcastle, England, water-logged and dismasted in a hurricane, on the morning of the 18th, and took off the survivors of the bark's complement of twenty men, the other eleven having been washed off the wreck. Mark Twain, who was a passenger on the Batavia, addresses a communication to the Royal Humane Society, giving a detailed account of the wreck, and bestowing the warmest praise on the officers of the Batavia. He says, under date of Wednesday:

"On Sunday night a strong west wind began to blow, and not long after midnight it increased to a gale. By 4 o'clock the sea was running very high. At 7½ our starboard bulwarks were stove in, and the water entered the main saloon. At a later hour the gangway on the port side came in with a crash, and the sea followed, flooding many of the state-rooms on that side. At the same time a sea crossed the roof of the vessel, and carried away one of our boats, splintering it to pieces, and taking one of the davits with it. At 9½ the glass was down to 28.35, and the gale was blowing with a severity which the officers say is not experienced oftener than once in five or ten years. The storm continued during the day and all night, and also all day yesterday, but with moderated violence. At 4 P. M. a dismasted vessel was sighted. A furious squall had just broken upon us, and the sea was running mountains high, to use the popular expression. Nevertheless Capt. Moulard immediately bore up for the wreck, which was making signals of distress, ordered out a life-boat, and called out for volunteers. To a landsman it seemed like deliberate suicide to go out in such a storm, but our third and fourth officers and eight men answered to the call with a promptness that compelled a cheer. They carried a long line with them, several life-buoys, and a lighted lantern, for the atmosphere was murky with the storm, and sunset was not far off. The wreck, a bark, was in a pitiful condition. Her main mast was naked; her mizzenmast and her bowsprit were gone, and her foremast was but a stump wreathed and cumbered with a ruin of sails and cordage from the fallen foretop and foretop-gallant masts and yards. We could see nine men clinging to the main rigging. The stern of the vessel was gone, and the sea made a clean breach over her, pouring in a cataract out of the broken stern, and spouting through the parted planks of her bows. Our boat pulled 300 yards, and approached the wreck on the lee side. Then it had a hard fight, for the waves and the wind beat it constantly back. I do not know when anything has alternately so stirred me through and through, and then disheartened me, as it did to see the boat every little while, get almost close enough, and then be hurled three lengths away again by a prodigious wave; and the darkness settling down all the time. But at last they got the line and buoy aboard, and after that we could make out nothing more. Presently we discovered the boat approaching us, and found she had saved every soul—nine men. They had had to drag these men, one at a time, through the sea to the life-boat with the line, and buoy, for of course they did not dare to touch the plunging vessel with the boat. The peril increased now, for every time the boat got close to our lee, our ship rolled over on her and hid her from sight. But our people managed to haul the party aboard one at a time, without losing a man, though I said they would lose every single one of them. I am, therefore, but a poor success as a prophet. As the fury of the squall had not diminished, and as the sea was so heavy, it was feared we might lose some men if we tried to hoist the life-boat aboard, so she was turned adrift by the Captain's order, poor thing, after helping in such a gallant deed.

To speak by the log, and to be accurate, Capt. Moreland gave the order to change our ship's course, and bear down toward the wreck at 4:14 P. M. At 5¼ our ship was under way again with those nine poor devils on board; that is to say, this admirable thing was done in a tremendous sea, and in the face of a hurricane, in sixty minutes by the watch, and if your honorable Society should be moved to give to Capt. Moreland and his boat's crew that reward which a sailor prizes and covets above all other distinctions, the Royal Humane Society's medal, the parties whose names are signed to this paper will feel as grateful as if they themselves were the recipients of this great honor. The wrecked barque was the Charles Ward, Capt. Bell, bound from Quebec to Scotland, with lumber. The vessel went over on her beam ends at 9 o'clock Monday morning, and eleven men were washed overboard and lost. Capt. Bell and eight men remained, and these our boat saved. They had been in the main rigging some thirty-one hours, without food or water, and were so frozen and exhausted, that, when we got them aboard, they could hardly speak, and the minds of several of them were wandering. The wreck was out of the ordinary track of vessels, and was 1,500 miles from land. She was in the centre of the Atlantic. Our life-boat crew of volunteers consisted of the following: D. Gillies, third officer; H. Kyle, fourth officer; Nicholas Foley, quartermaster; Henry Foley, quartermaster; Nathaniel Clark, quartermaster; Thomas Henry, seaman; John Park, seaman; Richard Brennan, seaman. After speaking of the enthusiasm of the passengers, Mark Twain continues: "As might have been anticipated, if I have been of any service toward rescuing these nine shipwrecked human beings by standing around the deck in a furious storm, without any umbrella, keeping an eye on things and seeing that they were done right, and yelling whenever a cheer seemed to be the important thing, I am glad and I am satisfied. I ask no reward. I would do it again under the same circumstances. But what I do plead for, earnestly and sincerely, is that the Royal Humane Society will remember our Captain and our life-boat crew, and in so remembering them increase the high honor and esteem in which the Society is held all over the civilized world. In this appeal our passengers all join with hearty sincerity, and in testimony thereof will sign their names, begging that you will pardon me, a stranger, for addressing your honored Society with such confidence and such absence of ceremony, and, trusting that my motive may redeem my manner. I am, gentlemen, your obedient servant. (Signed,) MARK TWAIN.

(SAMUEL L. CLEMENS.)

The Diamond Fields.

SALT LAKE CITY, Nov. 25.—The Salt Lake Herald will to-morrow publish a private letter, stating that Carter, Wyoming, is the nearest railroad point to the diamond fields. Gen. McClellan and party, when en route to California, stopped at Carter, and spent ten days in exploring the vicinity; and on their return East they made another diversion from Carter. Messrs. Janin and Berry, with a large party of Californians, also left the railroad at this point. Several diamonds were exhibited, which were found there by other parties. Another diamond expedition leaves this city to-morrow under the lead of Mr. Berry. They will probably leave the railroad at Green River station.

WALL-STREET.

The Stock Gamblers Adjusting Their Losses.

Affecting Interview Between Jay Gould and Daniel Drew.

The Chicago and North-Western Company Converting Bonds into Stock—Action of the Stock Exchange—Important Action in Relation to the Counterfeit Pacific Bonds.

The important events of the past few days caused the moneyed men of Wall-street to look with anxiety for the results of yesterday. The great feature of the day, as has been usual of late, was "Chicago and North-western Common," the "corner" being still kept up by the Vanderbilt party, headed by Jay Gould. The opening quotations were at a figure which satisfied Drew and Smith, now the only heavy "shorts," that no change had taken place for the better. Smith had kept out of the way, not appearing, except to his brokers and intimate friends. Drew, however, displayed none of this bashfulness, but, becoming uneasy, took occasion several times to call upon Gould at the office of Osborn & Chapin, with a view to a compromise. Gould received Drew in a courteous manner, and chatted about "old times" in a way calculated to inspire his visitor with the most sanguine hopes, but every time Daniel approached the North-western business he found Gould inexorable. Gould told Drew, in fact, that he had received considerable instruction from him in a "financiering" way, and frequently to his cost; that he always paid his losses like a man, and now he should insist upon Mr. Drew pursuing the same course.

Mr. Drew made several offers, but Gould insisted that the entire difference should be paid over, to which the former would not agree; so no settlement was arrived at. Smith, during the day, attempted to make his adversary believe that he was at liberty to proffer "North-western Preferred" instead of "North-western Common," in settlement of his contracts, but the Vanderbilt party took a different view of the matter, and refused to make the exchange. The rumors circulated to the effect that Smith had succeeded in his scheme; large purchases were made of "North-western Preferred," and it rose rapidly to such a figure that it was believed a corner had also developed in it. The great advance in the price of North-western Common, as a natural consequence, has brought nearly every share of the stock to the street for sale. The convertible bonds of the road and its branches have been turned into stock, and the extra price obtained. It was known to certain parties on Saturday that the Peninsular Branch Railroad bonds of the Chicago and North-western had been converted into stock, and that it was about to be placed upon the market.

Yesterday the following notice was sent to the President of the Stock Exchange:

> The Chicago and North-western Railroad Company give notice that, at the expiration of thirty days, they will register 2,225 shares common stock and 2,225 shares preferred stock, being stock the Company may be required to issue in exchange for Peninsular Railroad bonds, outstanding, to the amount of $445,000, and agreed by the terms of consolidation to be converted into stock, five shares of common and five shares of preferred for each bond of $1,000.
>
> (Signed,) J. F. TRACEY, President.
> C. R. MARVIN, Treasurer.

So soon as the above notice was read to the Board, the Committee on Securities visited the offices of the Chicago and North-western Road, and, after consultation with the officials, concluded to suspend the rules in this case, which require thirty days' notice to be given of the registration, and admit it at once. The following notice was therefore sent to the President of the Exchange:

> Edward King, Esq., President Stock Exchange:
>
> DEAR SIR: The notice sent you this morning in reference to additional registration is hereby withdrawn. Yours respectfully,
>
> M. L. SYKES, Vice-President.
>
> C. K. MARVIN, Treasurer.

Most of the bonds had been already converted into stock, and the latter sold at the ruling high prices. The holders of "Peninsula" bonds were consequently considerably elated yesterday.

A TIMES reporter called upon the President of the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, yesterday, and was informed that there was no difficulty in the way of registering the new stock, and that nearly all of it had been already properly entered upon the books of the Company. This issue was taken up by the Vanderbilt party without difficulty, and exercised no perceptible effect upon the ruling prices.

THE SITUATION LAST NIGHT.

At the Fifth-avenue Hotel, last evening, the excitement in regard to "North-western" had subsided considerably, there being no speculation in the stock at the present figures, the small operators having very generally settled. The rumors in regard to the course of the Erie Company with reference to Jay Gould were numerous and varied. It was reported that a second arrest is in contemplation; that an application will be made for an increase of his bail bond, and that attachments are to be issued on his property.

A reporter of the TIMES called upon Mr. Peter H. Watson, President of the Erie Company, in reference to the matter. Mr. Watson said that he had no knowledge of such movements; that the $1,000,000 bail already exacted for Mr. Gould's personal appearance, it is considered, will be sufficient to insure his attendance. That Gould will not be arrested again, because the complaint upon which he has already been arrested is exhaustive, and is intended to cover every transaction in which he has defrauded the Company; that attachments cannot be issued in this State against Gould's property, because he has not run away. Mr. Watson said that if attachments could be issued, it would most assuredly be done, but he had consulted prominent lawyers, and discovered that it was impossible to do so until a judgment had been obtained, or Mr. Gould attempted to flee the country. The course with regard to Gould would be to follow him closely and allow him no peace until he had made restitution.

THE COUNTERFEIT PACIFIC BONDS.

The discovery of the counterfeit Union Pacific bonds, which have been recently foisted upon the market, has called forth prompt action from the Company, and the Committee on Securities of the Stock Exchange. In order to guard against additional fraudulent coupons being cashed, and to protect buyers, the following notice has been issued, and notice given to the Stock Exchange:

> The Union Pacific Railroad Company are prepared to verify, in Boston, the income bonds of the Company.
> Such bonds are a good delivery only when the following is indorsed thereon, viz.: "This is a valid bond of the U. P. R. R. Co.," to be signed by the Treasurer and one of the following persons:
>
> OLIVER AMES,
> J. M. S. WILLIAMS,
> JOHN B. DUFF,
> B. E. BATES,
> F. GORDON DEXTER,
>
> with the date of said signatures.
>
> (Signed) EDWARD BRANDON, Chairman.
>
> NEW-YORK, 22d November, 1872.

The following is the decision of the Committee on Securities in regard to the forged income bond of the Union Pacific Railroad Company:

> Sellers who have delivered counterfeit bonds must take them back and give genuine bonds for them, without regard to the time elapsed. They may, however, require sworn evidence that the bonds returned are the identical bonds delivered.
>
> EDWARD BRANDON, Chairman.

INTERVIEW WITH HENRY N. SMITH.

A reporter had an interview with Henry N. Smith, yesterday, in regard to his position in the North-west stock matter. In company with Mr. Smith were Mr. Vanderpoel, one of his counsel, of the firm of Brown, Hall & Vanderpoel, and Mr. Joslyn, of the firm of Joslyn, Bach & Co., a house in which both Gould and Smith are special partners. In regard to a very pointed question as to what Mr. Smith intended to do in regard to settling his liabilities on his transactions in North-western, he and his counsel, Mr. Vanderpoel, made statements which were in substance as follows:

THE INTENTION OF HENRY N. SMITH.

Mr. Smith said, on consultation with my counsel, Judge Porter, we came to the conclusion that North-western preferred stock was a good legal tender for North-western common, and that a man who received North-western preferred stock for North-western common would receive in addition all the privileges of the preferred stock, for by the provision under which the stock is issued, the preferred stock is entitled to seven per cent. dividend, and then if there be any surplus over fourteen per cent., the preferred stock is entitled to be paid three per cent., just as the preferred stock is ten, while the common is only seven per cent. After the preferred receives this ten per cent. then any earnings are divided equally between the preferred and common.

In reply to the question as to how the Board would regard any attempt to settle his (Mr. Smith's) liabilities in this manner, he and Mr. Vanderpoel replied in one breath, and glancing at each other, that the Board of Brokers had nothing to do with Mr. Smith's individual action, inasmuch as Mr. Smith is not a member of that Board. "I," said Mr. Smith, "having occasion to pay to Garland, Martin & Co., the firm in which Gould and myself are each special partners, 4,000 shares I tendered him in place of 4,000 shares of common, 4,000 shares of preferred stock. Garland, Martin & Co. were 'long' of stocks for Jay Gould; they were his brokers and borrowed from me upon this stock, giving me the right to use it and not obliging me to return the same certificates. When I was called upon for the stock I returned to them 4,000 shares of the preferred stock, and they said they were not authorized by their principals to receive it."

HOW BARLOW COMES IN.

Mr. Smith explained how he happened to be dragged into the difficulty. It was not through stock-jobbing. Oh, no! Certainly not! Mr. Barlow sent for him about two weeks ago. At Mr. Barlow's residence he (Henry N. Smith) met Mr. Barlow and P. H. Watson, President of the Erie Railroad. He (Mr. Smith) was then informed by Mr. Watson that the books of the Erie Railroad Company showed that there were some $15,000,000 which Mr. Gould had misappropriated; and that the suspicion was universal that he, Mr. Smith, had just as much to do with the fraud in this affair as Mr. Gould had. "I," said Mr. Smith," assured Barlow and Watson that the firm of Smith, Gould & Martin were simply brokers for the Erie Railroad Company; that I had never received a dollar of money belonging to the Erie Railroad Company except in the legitimate way of business, and that I did not believe that Mr. Martin had."

"I am going to contest this thing in the Courts," said Mr. Smith, "and I'll bet any amount of money I win."

Failure of a Cincinnati Banking-House in Consequence of the North-Western "Corner."

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Nov. 25.—S. B. Keyes & Co., bankers of this city, suspended today, in consequence of indirect losses in the corner in North-west common. Their loss is about $140,000. Whether they will be able to resume or not will depend upon what they may hereafter realize from customers.

The cashier of the Union Bank, at Marietta, Ohio, telegraphed to Cincinnati, yesterday, that the bank is all right and will resume business in a few days.

She was bound from St. Louis to Memphis with 200 tons of freight, most of which was insured, but the offices are not ascertained. She stopped at Chester to coal, and when backing out to leave the fire was discovered in the carpenter shop. A strong wind was blowing, and in twenty minutes the steamer was burned to the water's edge and sunk. The passengers and crew were saved.

A Postal Treaty Concluded with Newfoundland.

That Old Chorpenning Fraud Turned Up Again.

A Woman Who Can't Keep a Post-Office—The Louisiana Election—Pardon of Paymaster Hodges—Look Out for a Democratic Howl.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—A postal convention has just been concluded between the United States and Newfoundland, to take effect on and after Dec. 1, 1872. The rate of postage is reduced to six cents per half ounce and under; prepayment is compulsory. The United States postage on newspapers is two cents each, and on pamphlets, periodicals, and other printed matter and patterns or samples the rate is two cents for each two ounces. These amounts must be prepaid on matter sent to Newfoundland from the United States. The same rates as above, except on letters, are collected on all matter from Newfoundland when delivered in the United States, without regard to what may have been prepaid there. Each country collects its own postage on all matter sent or received, and no accounts are kept between the two.

CHORPENNING ONCE MORE.

George Chorpenning, whose claim against the Post-office Department received no inconsiderable mention during the campaign, will again attempt to bring the claim to the attention of Congress. To direct public attention to the subject, a pamphlet, claiming to embrace the entire history of the claim, is now in course of preparation. This pamphlet is particularly bitter toward Mr. Dawes, and connects the names of Mr. Sargeant and Mr. Creswell with its subject matter.

Mr. E. V. Murphy, of the Senate Official Reporters' Corps, has returned here from Louisiana, where he has been engaged in the campaign since August last, in the capacity of private secretary to Senator Kellogg. He fully confirms the special dispatches to the TIMES, from New-Orleans, regarding the high-handed outrages by which Warmoth seeks to nullify the result of the election, and says there is absolutely no question but that the Republicans carried Louisiana by from 15,000 to 20,000 majority, which will be fully demonstrated by an honest count. Mr. Murphy says that Warmoth's movements are accepted by nearly every one in New-Orleans as a confession that only by fraud and force can he make the State appear Democratic.

Dispatch to the Associated Press.

PARDON OF MAJOR HODGE.

On Saturday President Grant satisfied himself that the Department of Justice could not take preliminary measures for the pardon of Major Hodge, as this was a matter exclusively pertaining to the War Department, Hodge having been convicted of the embezzlement of $450,000 by a general Court-martial, and sentenced to ten years' confinement in the Penitentiary. The President accordingly had a conference with Secretary Belknap, and other gentlemen in high official position upon the subject. The President was, it is understood, moved to this act of clemency by the belief that Major Hodge was drawn into the defalcation by the intrigues of others, rather than by any premeditated intention of his own to defraud the Government. His frank acknowledgment of the crime, and his voluntarily making all reparation in his power by surrendering his private property, and in which his wife insisted upon joining him with her own individual property, excited for him and his family the sympathy not only of officers of the army, but of many others in prominent public and social positions who were acquainted with all the facts of the case. His conduct at the trial, in declining to take any technical advantages, and also his deportment since his confinement, have somewhat contributed to his liberation. His wife, who is in very delicate health, and their children, made earnest appeals to the President, which were not among the least of the efforts in his behalf, and which strengthened the President in his disposition to extend the pardoning power. Besides, it was considered that Hodge who, previous to the embezzlement, had borne a high character for honesty among his brother officers, and was respected among them for his social qualities, had already been severely punished by the stigma attached to him by the sentence as much so as if he had served out the entire term of ten years' imprisonment. The following order was issued this afternoon:

> WAR DEPARTMENT,
> ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
> WASHINGTON, Nov. 25, 1872.
>
> General Court-martial Order No. 33.—The President of the United States directs that the remainder of the sentence to confinement, in the case of John Ledyard Hodge, late Paymaster United States Army, published in General Court martial Order No. 21, of Oct. 9, 1871, be and it is hereby remitted. He will be released from confinement accordingly.
>
> By order of the Secretary of War.
>
> E. D. TOWNSEND, Adjutant-General.
>
> Official.
> E. D. TOWNSEND, Adjutant-General.

The announcement of the pardon was immediately telegraphed by Adjt.-Gen. Townsend to the Warden of Albany Penitentiary, who was directed to liberate Major Hodge without delay. A telegram was also sent to his wife informing her of the action of the President.

POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT MATTERS.

A postal convention has been concluded with the Province of Newfoundland, reducing the international letter rate between the United States and Newfoundland, on and after Dec. 1, from ten cents to six cents per half ounce, and fixing the rate for newspapers at two cents each, prepayment being compulsory. Each country is to levy and collect its own postage on all other articles of printed matter, sample and patterns of merchandise. The United States will charge on all such matter two cents for each two ounces or fraction thereof. The Post-office Department today ordered an extension of the postal service on the Syracuse and Chenango Railroad, from Cazenovia to Erieville, N. Y., a distance of eight miles, at $400 per annum, commencing Dec. 2.

Probable Murder in Brooklyn—A Woman Brained with a Potato-Masher—But Little Hopes of Her Recovery—Five Wounds Found on Her Head.

At a late hour last evening the attention of the police was called to a woman named Margaret Bradley, who was lying under the stoop of No. 48 Front-street, apparently in a dying condition. Officers Phelan and Mooney found the woman bleeding profusely from five wounds on the face and head—one on the chin, another on the upper lip, cutting it through to the jaw, a third on the cheek, the fourth on the forehead, and the fifth, the most serious, cutting through the left ear, fracturing the skull, and making a wound on the scalp behind the ear about two inches in length. She was so exhausted from loss of blood as not to be able to state how or from whom she recieved the injuries, except merely to say that while visiting a family named Barr, who lived in the basement of the house, she had been beaten and thrust out. The woman was removed to the Second Precinct Police Station, where surgical attendance was provided, and the police entered the basement of the house, where they found Hugh Barr, his wife Rosa, and a woman named Alice Barkey, who were all under the influence of liquor, were arrested. The police then searched the premises, and found an oaken potato-masher covered with blood. Upon being questioned, the woman Barkey said that Margaret Bradley was beaten by Hugh Barr during a quarrel. The injured woman growing weaker, Dr. Newton ordered her to be taken to the City Hospital, where her condition was declared to be very dangerous, with but little hope of recovery. Hugh Barr and his wife Rosa were both locked up to answer the charge, and the woman Barkey held as a witness.

FRENCH SPOLIATIONS.

Meeting of Ladies and Gentlemen Interested in Baltimore—A Vigorous Effort to be Made in Congress This Winter.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 25.—A large meeting of bankers, merchants, mechanics, and others, ladies as well as gentlemen, interested in pressing the French spoliation claims, was held in the office of Henry W. Rogers, Esq., of this city, this evening. These claims arise out of the seizure or destruction of over 1,500 American vessels, valued with their cargoes at $15,000,000 or $20,000,000, prior to 1801, which depredations were in retaliation for the refusal of the United States to be bound by treaty stipulations during the struggle of the colonies with Great Britain. These claims the United States years ago solemnly undertook to pay, and bills for the relief of the sufferers by the French spoliations have been before more than forty Congresses. They have been favorably reported on by forty-one Committees; they have seven times passed the Senate, and twice the House, and have been twice vetoed—by Polk and by Pierce. The meeting passed resolutions looking to the pressing of the claims vigorously during the coming session of Congress.

ESTIMATES FOR 1873.

Abstracts of the Estimated Cost of the Various City Departments.

Expenses of the Courts and Public Departments.

Full List of the Accounts to be Submitted to the Board of Apportionment.

A View of the Probable Cost of Municipal Government.

Figures that will Prove Interesting to Every Tax-Payer.

Nearly all the departments of the City Government have submitted their estimates of the probable expenses of each during the ensuing year. The subjoined abstracts cover all that are now in the Controller's office. The estimate from the Department of Parks is not yet in, and a few of the Civil and Police District Courts are wanting, but from the exhibit given herewith, a general idea may be obtained of the probable cost of our Municipal Government during 1873. The estimates are mainly based on the expenses of the several departments for the past year, as called for by the circular letter of the Controller, which was sent to each; but it should be remembered that on the Board of Apportionment devolves the duty of revising these estimates. Doubtless a considerable reduction will be made in some of them when they come under such review. The Civil and Police District Courts, for example, will probably suffer a little; and the Law Courts, with their innumerable "attendants," exclusive of clerks, deputy clerks, deputy assistant clerks, &c., will receive from the Board some of the reformation they appear to need. The following are the figures:

GOULD AND ERIE.

Order to Show Cause Why the Order of Arrest Should Not Be Vacated.

Counsel for Jay Gould, yesterday, appeared before Judge Fancher, in Supreme Court, Chambers, and obtained an order, returnable on Monday next, directing the Erie Railroad Company to show cause why the order of arrest heretofore granted against Gould, and under which the latter was held to bail in the sum of $1,000,000, should not be vacated. An order was also granted at the same time, authorizing the examination of Mr. Horace F. Clark and Augustus Schell, it being intended to use the testimony thus obtained to sustain the motion to vacate the order of arrest.

Both orders were granted on the affidavit of Jay Gould, the plaintiff, in which he swears that the facts in general, as set forth in the affidavits of Peter H. Watson and Henry N. Smith, on which the order of arrest was granted in the first instance, are untrue; that he refrains from going into the full facts now, because the Court will not allow them to be used on a motion to vacate the order of arrest; that the only knowledge Watson has of the facts he has sworn to is from the entries on the books of the Erie Company, and possibly he may have had access to the books of Smith, Gould, Martin & Co.; that, except the legal conclusion that he (Gould) being a partner of Smith, Martin & Co., had supervision of its books, Watson's affidavit is necessarily made without any knowledge on his part; that so far as the affidavits on which the order of arrest was granted allege any facts, such facts are perverted and made to appear in a false light, and other facts have been suppressed, which were known to Henry N. Smith; that among such suppressed facts was the fact that the shares alleged to have been purchased in August, 1869, at the average rate of $61 47, when not worth more than $29, were purchased during the year 1868, at the actual prices charged, and were then selling in the market at the price so charged, and even higher; that at the time of drawing this affidavit the attorneys for the plaintiff were informed by Smith that $29 was the market price, when the final entry of the transaction was made in 1869, the transaction itself having taken place nine months before; that before making such affidavit plaintiff and his counsel well knew that plaintiff had executed a release to him, (Gould,) covering all the matters and things set forth in the affidavit; and also of the existence upon the records of the Company of resolutions, passed on the 30th of August, 1871, by the Board of Directors, authorizing such release to him, (Gould,) James Fisk, Jr., and Frederick A. Lane, both in law and equity, of all matters or claims growing out of their connection with the Company, as between them and the Company; that John Hilton and Henry Thomson were, by such resolutions, constituted a committee, and instructed to execute such release in the name of the Company, and that the Secretary and Assistant Secretary be directed to attest the same, and to affix thereto the corporate seal of the Company, which release was executed in due form and delivered to him (Gould) on Jan. 1, 1872; that neither he nor Fisk were present at the meeting where such resolutions were passed, and that it was well-known to those making the affidavits for the plaintiff that such release had been executed and delivered, and that the acts charged in such affidavits occurred prior to the execution and delivery of such release; that at the time of the resolution authorizing such release it was well-known to all the directors of the Company that charges had been made against him (Gould) covering substantially the whole ground of this action, and that the proceedings of the directors and execution of the release in pursuance thereof were intended to put an end to all litigation respecting the matters set forth in plaintiff's affidavits, and forming the basis of this action; that these facts were intentionally concealed from the Court in order to obtain the desired order of arrest, the reason for obtaining such order being, as he (Gould) believes, as follows: At the time of his arrest, and for some days previously, he (Gould) had been actively and constantly engaged in dealing in shares of the Chicago and North-western Railroad Company, had very large and numerous transactions in such shares, and was engaged in a large movement to advance the price thereof, all of which was well known to S. L. M. Barlow, Wm. B. Duncan, and William R. Travers, the managers of this suit for the plaintiff; that the day of his (Gould's) arrest, Henry N. Smith, Daniel Drew, William R. Travers, and numerous other persons, as he is informed and believes, confidential friends of Barlow, Duncan and Travers, were engaged in a speculation to depress the price of the said shares, and had sold a large number of such shares which they did not own, in the expectation of buying them in the market, when the time came for delivery, at a lower price, and thus realize a large profit, and as he (Gould) believes, the order of arrest was obtained and served on that particular day in the expectation and for the purpose, on the part of the plaintiff's attorneys and committee, of producing a panic in the market, and causing a large fall in the market price of the shares, and for the purpose of enabling Smith, Drew, and Travers, and other persons to realize large profits from their transactions; that plaintiff's attorneys, as he (Gould) believes, urged upon the Judge to grant an order of arrest in over $9,000,000, in the belief that such bail could not be given, and he (Gould) would have to go to jail, leaving his business to go to ruin; that if he had not procured bail a panic would have been the result, and he would have sustained losses to an enormous amount, and would be thereby incapacitated from paying any judgment that might have been obtained against him in this or any action; that such was the intention, as he believes, of Smith, Drew, and others, in the hope to ruin him, (Gould,) and succeed in their private speculations; that the intention to serve the order of arrest on the day it was served was made known to many persons engaged in stock speculations to enable them to operate in expectation of a panic; that when the order was served, one of the plaintiff's attorneys came in person, bringing with him a large crowd of persons who had no connection with his office or with plaintiff, but to whom intimations had been given that such arrest would take place, and who gathered to witness the same, and for the purpose of spreading the news through the stock market, and thereby causing a panic which, as plaintiff is informed and believes, all the persons having anything to do with the said arrest, expected and desired.

The Eighth National Bank.

A meeting of the depositors of the Eighth National Bank will be held on Friday evening next at the Sinclair House, to take action in reference to the recovery of $200,000 still owing by the directors and stockholders of the bankrupt institution. A dividend of twenty-five per cent. was promised by the receiver, Mr. Albon Man, some months ago, but it is not forthcoming. A rumor that the stockholders intend declaring a dividend of ten per cent. if the depositors will absolve them from all other claims, has caused considerable sensation among the swindled creditors of the bank, and the meeting on Friday next promises to be a very exciting one.

Assistant Aldermen—The Clerk's Reforms—Steam Dummies.

The Board of Assistant Aldermen met yesterday.

James Russell and J. Watson Peyster made application for the payment of awards made to them by the Commissioners of Broadway Opening, on the 5th of July, 1872, for damages to their property. Award to Russell, $48,000; to Peyster, $23,520. The applications were merely formal notices prior to the commencement of suits for the recovery of the awards. The applications were referred to the Finance Committee.

Assistant Alderman Robinson introduced a resolution directing the Clerk of the Board to furnish an explanation of the items of the estimate of expenditure for next year, which he furnished to the Board of Apportionment a few days ago, to report at next meeting.

Mr. Pinckney hoped that the resolution would pass, for Mr. Kelly has done what no other clerk has ever done before, namely, put in, he dared to say, a moderate estimate. The resolution was passed unanimously. The Committee on Railroads reported that in compliance with the views of the public on the question of steam-dummies, no opponents to the contemplated permission appearing before the Committee, they recommend that the Mayor be authorized to grant the permission to continue for three months. The report was received, and ordered to be printed in the minutes.

HONORS TO THE POLICE.

Presentation by the Citizens' Committee to the Police Department—A Beautiful Testimonial.

The Police force of the City of New-York were made, yesterday, the recipients of an elegant flag of honor for their conduct and discipline during the riots of 1863 and 1871. The Board of Underwriters voted $250 for the purpose. After several postponements the flag was finally presented to the Police yesterday, with interesting ceremonies. In accordance with orders issued by Superintendent Kelso, a detachment of the force, consisting of the first and second battalions, and numbering nearly 1,200 officers and patrolmen was detailed to parade on the occasion. The force assembled at the corner of Madison-square and Twenty-third-street, and reported to Capt. Copeland, Drill Inspector, at 2 P. M. The force was divided into two battalions of twelve companies, each company consisting of one Captain, two Sergeants, two roundsmen and forty patrolmen. The battalions were officered as follows:

First Battalion—Inspector G. W. Dilks acting as Colonel, Capt. John J. Mount as Lieutenant-Colonel, Capt. Henry Hedden as Major. The commandants of companies were Capts. Ulman, Walsh, Tyman, Kennedy, Byrnes, Buden, Cameron, Williams, Killalia, Sanders, McDonnell, and Ward. The Second Battalion was commanded by Inspector Walling as Colonel, Capt. Allaire as Lieutenant-Colonel, Capt. Petty as Major. The companies were commanded by Capts. Caffrey, Vandusen, Sergt. Roberts, Capts. Oberry, Murphy, Clinchy, Garland, Yule, Davis, McElwain, McCullogh and Speight. Sergt. Tuck acted as adjutant of the First Battalion, and Sergt. Griffiths of the Second Battalion. After the column was formed, Superintendent Kelso took command, and, each battalion headed by a band of music, the force marched through Madison-avenue, Twenty-sixth-street, to Fifth-avenue; Fifth-avenue to Fourteenth-street; Fourteenth-street to Fourth-avenue; Fourth-avenue to Seventeenth-street, where they formed on the north side of Union-square, immediately in front of the Everett House, in brigade line, battalions in mass.

In the meantime the Citizens' Committee, consisting of Messrs. W. E. Dodge, President of the Chamber of Commerce; George W. Savage, President of the New-York Board of Fire Underwriters; Henry A. Oakley, President of the National Board of Fire Underwriters; A. S. Jewell, President of the New-York Produce Exchange; Edward King, President of the New-York Stock Exchange; F. S. Lathrop, President of the Board of Marine Underwriters; Wm. A. Camp, Manager of the Clearing-house; H. S. Olcott, Secretary of the National Insurance Convention, and Alexander Shaler, Major-Gen. commanding First Division New-York State National Guard, assembled at Police Head-quarters shortly before 3 o'clock, and accompanied by Police Commissioners Bosworth, Barr, and Manierre, drove to Union-square in carriages, escorted by a troop of mounted Police under command of Capt. Wilson, Thirty-second Precinct.

After the Police force has been brought to "attention," and the officers brought to the front, the flag was unfurled and presented by Hon. Geo. W. Savage, in a neat speech, in which he complimented the Police force for its services on the dates named.

Commissioner Bosworth received the flag in behalf of the Police force, replying to the address of Mr. Savage in terms of appreciation, and to the Department he spoke a few words of encouragement and praise.

The flag was then borne to the front by a stalwart patrolman. The whole force saluted, and the band played the "Star-Spangled Banner." Several evolutions were then performed, and the Commissioners, Citizens' Committee and guests were paid the compliment of a marching salute. The column subsequently moved down Broadway to Bleecker-street, and through Bleecker-street to Police Head-quarters, where the parade was dismissed. The appearance of the force was very fine, and the marching and evolutions were well performed, eliciting applause from the crowds assembled to witness the parade.

The flag is made of dark blue silk, six feet six inches by six feet, double, bordered by gold-colored silk fringe, and ornamented by silken cords and tassels of the same color. The staff is of varnished lance-wood, tipped with brass, and surmounted by a gilt eagle with spread wings. On one face of the flag is embroidered with exquisite skill the coat-of-arms of the City of New-York, and on the other the following inscription:

THE CITIZENS OF NEW-YORK TO THEIR BRAVE POLICE.
1863—JULY—1871.
Faithful unto Death.

Entwined among the letters is a beautifully worked crown of laurel tied with a gray ribbon, and the whole reflects credit upon the embroideress.

The Flag of Honor will be kept at Head-quarters, and only unfurled at the annual parades of the Department, and at the funerals of men who may be killed in the line of duty, or die in consequence of injuries so received. The Citizens' Committee, however, with a view to keeping it always fresh in the recollection of the men, have ordered a colored lithograph drawing of the flag, and a sufficient number of copies will be furnished the Board to place one in every station-house in the Metropolitan district.

OUR CITY CHARITIES.

The Commissioners Approve of the Hospital Outrage.

Startling Report of Dr. Echeverria Relative to the Insane Asylum.

Some Further Facts About the Carrie Johnson Case—What a Police Surgeon Did—The Affidavit of the Girl in Full.

The Commissioners of Charities and Correction seem determined to brave public opinion in the matter of the outrageous conduct of the physicians employed by them in the Bloomingdale Reception Hospital. Knowing that the Board would hold a regular meeting yesterday, a TIMES reporter was sent to attend, but he found on arriving at their office, corner of Third-avenue and Eleventh-street, that the representatives of the Press were not permitted to be present, the meeting being held in secret session. The reporter, however, requested admittance to the meeting-room, but was repulsed with a gruff shout of "No!" from one of the Commissioners within, followed by the fastening of the door in his face by the attendant. At the close of the meeting, Commissioner Bowen, in reply to the question, "What will be done in the case of the colored girl who, when in the Bloomingdale Reception Hospital, was taken out of bed, whipped with a cord, and cut with a lancet?" replied, "Oh, we have approved the conduct of the physicians, and there's an end of it." We are not so sure of this. It will be remembered that in the report of the physicians published on Sunday they admitted having whipped the girl Carrie E. Johnson, though they claimed that she was simply shamming and an impostor. To show that the girl is not an imposter it is only necessary to state that the following record appears on the books of the Fifth Ward Police, showing that she came under treatment for fits there on the same day she was sent to the Bloomingdale Hospital:

Carrie Johnson, colored, aged twenty-three, was found on the evening of the 18th inst., lying insensible and convulsed on the sidewalk, at the corner of Walker-street and Broadway. An officer of the precinct caused her to be removed to the Fifth Ward Station-house. She was there laid on a bed in a back room, and Dr. Dalrymple, the surgeon, was telegraphed for. At this time she was frothing excessively at the mouth, her teeth and hands were convulsively clenched, and her eyes were opened in a fixed stare. The surgeon restored her to consciousness by throwing water in her face, (not by puncturing or whipping,) and she was sent to her home, No. 135 West Thirtieth-street, the address she gave when she became sensible. She had every appearance, in the opinion of the surgeon, of being subject to fits.

The following is the affidavit made by Carrie relative to the outrage:

On Monday night, Nov. 18, I was taken with an epileptic fit on a Seventh-avenue car. I was carried to the Reception Hospital at Bloomingdale. On Tuesday, 19th inst., about 1 o'clock P. M., five doctors came into the room. At first they said, "Let us bleed her." One of them took a lancet and cut a place in my arm, but not for the purpose of bleeding. Then three of them, with lancets, pricked me in different parts of the body, at the same time calling me all kinds of vile names, and using the most indecent language. After they had got through with the lancets they pulled me out of bed by the ears and dragged me up and down the floor. I have been suffering for some time with fits; cannot stand on my feet for some time, as the pain is so intense; I told them of this, and begged them to stop their brutal treatment, but they only laughed at me and pulled me up by the ears to make me stand. Then one of them got a strap, and, while the others were dragging me around, he beat me with it. They had taken away all my clothing except one garment. When they were tired of dragging me around, and had done acts too indecent to mention, they held me up by the ears and told me "to squeal." I begged them, for God's sake, to stop, but they only laughed at me. While this was going on some one opened the door. It was another doctor. "What have you got here?" asked he. "O, come in, Doc.," said one; "We have got a feast here; won't you partake?" When they were tired of this brutal treatment they put me into bed and made an examination. Then one of them said, "I guess there is some trouble there," and then covered me up and left me. I asked them for my clothes, but they told me to shut up and go to sleep. On the morning of the 20th, a woman came and brought my clothes. I got up and dressed myself, and as I was coming out a man brought my pocket-book to me. There was $2 25 in it when I was taken sick, but when returned to me, it contained eighty-five cents. I told them so, but they answered that I lied. I told them I would have an account of their treatment of me put in the papers. They replied that I might "go to h—l," and have it put where I pleased, and that if I did not leave they would find a way to make me.

DR. ECHEVERRIA'S REPORT.

As a further proof of the culpable negligence and inefficiency of the Commissioners of Public Charities and Correction, in the conduct of the important institutions under their charge, we now give the report of Dr. Echeverria to Mayor Hall, relative to the City Asylum for the Insane, on Ward's Island. The document was handed to the Mayor yesterday:

To the Hon. A. Oakey Hall, Mayor of the City of New-York:

SIR: I deem it my duty as a citizen, and as late Resident Physician to the City Asylum for the Insane, Ward's Island, from which position I have been removed without notice or hearing on the 8th inst. by the Board of Commissioners of Public Charities and Correction, to respectfully and most earnestly call your attention to the following facts, which would have been embodied in the annual report of the Asylum to your Honor on the last of this year but for my removal:

The City Asylum for the Insane was opened for the admission of patients on the 13th of December, 1871. The Commissioner's room, the general office, the apartments for the physicians, the steward, and matron were the only parts of the Asylum fitted up with furniture of the most inferior quality, though represented to be first class; one common table was the only thing provided for the Resident Physician's office, whereas the lunatics were exposed to the hardship consequent on the complete absence of even the most necessary furniture throughout the wards.

It was resolved by the Board of Commissioners that patients who should have been recently admitted into the old Asylum, and whose insanity was of an acute character, should be transferred to the Ward's Island new Asylum; in fact, the latter had not been built appropriately for any other kind of cases, neither was the condition of its surroundings in any manner arranged to allow to the patients the benefit of exercise in the open air. Notwithstanding all these circumstances, and the contrary advice and earnest remonstrances of the physicians, the most helpless, broken-down, demented—several of them suffering from scurvy, induced by insufficient or inadequate diet—were transferred from the old Asylum on Blackwell's Island to the new one on Ward's Island, and where, as if to render their transfer still more injurious to them, no accommodation whatever had been provided for the reception of these unfortunate lunatics, most of whom had to sleep on the bare floor with nothing but a blanket to cover them. These old inmates of the Blackwell's Island Asylum had been kept there under no special care and without any restriction, thereby acquiring the most degraded habits and instincts. Many of the attendants, who came with them, were ignorant and brutal; their ill-treatment of the patients had never received any check at Blackwell's Island, and, from the beginning, they showed a spirit of insubordination and contempt to the rules of the new Asylum, countenanced in a great degree by the leniency or indifference of the Commissioners, naturally loath to press them hard for their offenses. The evils of the course pursued by the Commissioners were neither light nor imaginary, for they soon manifested themselves in death-rate, helped as it was besides by the neglect and incompetency of the Steward and Matron of the asylum.

The 26th of January, 1872, I reported to the Board the imminent danger of the spread of pestilence among the lunatics at the Asylum, and the measures imperatively required to avert. I strongly condemned the gross carelessness of the Steward and Matron, with the consequent filthy condition of the wards, the insufficient food dispensed to the patients, their neglect and shameful nakedness from want of clothing, as well as several other evils which had been creeping in throughout the institution; but the Board applied no remedy to eradicate them, nor did any of the Commissioners inquire personally into the critical condition of the Asylum. Typhus, of the most malignant nature, broke out, and made almost daily victims; twenty-one lunatics died, from the middle of February to the middle of April, out of a division of fifty-nine patients. I earnestly urged on the Board as soon as the first case of typhus occurred, to remove the patients from the division they occupied, and asked for the bedsteads and clothing they had been using during their long previous sojourn at the old Asylum, in order to mitigate the terrible hardships they were enduring. The Board, however, informed me that such patients had been sleeping on the floor of their respective wards at Blackwell's Island, and that consequently their condition could not be improved. The Resident Physician was thus left to his own resources, and when the east wing of the Asylum building was completed, in the beginning of last April, those patients in the infected division who escaped with their lives, were transferred to the new wards, and the typhus was arrested.

The average number of inmates at the Asylum during last February was 375 lunatics, 118 work-house prisoners, 19 attendants, and other officers, raising the total population to 525 inmates. The quantity of food that should have been required, according to the dietary table, for the exclusive diet of the number of lunatics just cited should have been 7,795 pounds, of which 5,512 were only received, according to the requisitions and vouchers of the steward, to be distributed among the whole population of the Asylum, and necessarily depriving the lunatics of vegetable food when they most needed it. During the same month of February, according to official documents transmitted to the Board, 2,200 pounds of bread were received in excess of the rations required for the 525 inmates at the Asylum. This excessive surplus of bread was not consumed by the patients, for complaints were made during February of the insufficient allowance of bread given out to the patients by the Steward, who was never called to account for such an extravagant waste of bread. This single instance evinces how loosely-managed is the important matter of food supply to the institutions under the Commissioners, their reports and public statements to the contrary notwithstanding, and suffices also to demonstrate the starvation, which so efficiently contributed to decimate the patients, in addition to the noxious hygienic conditions under which they were maintained, through an improper administration of the Asylum, against which the protests of the Resident Physician were powerless.

The Board of Commissioners resolved, on the 27th of February, 1872, "that Dr. Austin Flint, Dr. Alfred L. Loomis, and Dr. Edward Janeway be respectfully requested to examine into the condition of the Lunatic Asylum on Ward's Island, the course of treatment of patients there domiciled, and to report on the measures which in their opinion should be adopted to protect the patients from typhus fever, which has recently broken out in that Asylum." This committee, in their report, condemned the same evils I had, from the beginning condemned, and to eradicate them suggested the very same preventive measures I had long before and most earnestly proposed to the Board, as my correspondence with the Board will show. The advice, however, carried no more weight coming from the Committee than it did when coming from the Resident Physician, for—after such a resolution and apparent anxiety of the Board—the state of things remained effectually undisturbed at the Asylum, but with the following change of officers: The Steward, who had displayed so much zeal and ability in mismanaging the Insane Asylum, was promoted to a wider field of labor, and appointed Superintendent of the Hospitals and Idiot House in Randall's Island. The Matron was retained in the position for which she proved herself utterly unfit; and to secure, if it were possible, a more perfect mismanagement of the Asylum, and increase its expense and complicate its affairs, the Board saw proper, on Feb. 23, 1872, to create the office of Warden, appointing Edward Burke, late janitor to a public school, thereto, with a salary of $2,500 per annum. The duties of this Warden have been exactly those previously assigned to the Steward; however, to help the former in the arduous labor laid out for him, the Board further appointed a clerk, paid by the Department, and, with the office organized in this manner, the Warden was invested with supreme authority, and directed, as I heard Hon. Commissioner O. W. Brennan tell him, to be "the boss" of the Asylum.

Another contemplation of the reform here in question was to transfer the Resident Physician to the Asylum in Blackwell's Island, and to remove Dr. Parsons therefrom to the Asylum in Ward's Island, to remedy thereby the grand fault and unnecessary complaints which were attached to the management of the latter. The motion for this change of physicians was laid over, and Hon. Commissioner Nicholson was directed by the Board to confer with me on the subject. As soon as I was informed of the Board's intentions, I stated to Commissioner Nicholson that the most favorable answer which I could give to such a proposition was not to consent to a transfer I considered derogatory to my professional standing, nor to tender my resignation if such were the real aim of the Board in acting in this manner. I further maintained that I had conscientiously done my duty without any assistance or encouragement from the Board, taking the proper medical care of the patients, suggesting the necessary rules for the best administration of the Asylum, and foreseeing the dangers of pestilence at last spreading, through the inaction and neglect of the Commissioners to listen to the recommendations and advice of the Resident Physician concerning the imperative measures required to arrest it. In addition, I asked the Board the reason—and I renew that question here—why the typhus patients at the Asylum were deprived of the benefit of the special appropriation of $100,000, made to the Board for the proper care and treatment of persons afflicted with contagious diseases. Finally, as already stated, I declined then, as I did recently after the investigation of the Board into the charge of drunkenness I brought and proved against the Warden—to abandon my post unless dismissed therefrom by the Board. The Commissioners, upon consideration, deemed it advisable to withdraw the motion concerning the change of Resident Physician, who was once more promised, by Commissioner Bowen, a fundamental reform in the management of the Ward's Island Lunatic Asylum.

A second committee, composed of Profs. John W. Draper, Robert Ogden Doremus, and Charles F. Chandler, were appointed by the Board on June 10, 1872, to examine and report into the condition of the City Asylum for the Insane. This committee instituted the most thorough investigation and made different visits to the Asylum; they examined into the communications and suggestions addressed by the Resident Physician to the Board in reference to the pestilence of typhus and causes of insalubrity of the Asylum, and the Committee closed their report to the Board, stating that the Resident Physician did whatever he could to prevent the typhus, and after a strict examination into the matter the Committee felt it their duty to add that the conduct of the Resident Physician met their approval.

That the Board of Commissioners paid no more attention to the judicious and wise recommendations of the learned Professors than to those of the previous Special Committee, is most striking in the subsequent disgraceful condition in which the Asylum has been allowed to continue. It requires no argument to show the relaxation of discipline and the pernicious influence consequent on clothing a man—without any experience whatever of the workings of an hospital or asylum for the insane, and otherwise lacking the education or attainments for such a difficult task—with the supreme and unaccountable authority conferred by the Board on the new Warden. The Asylum, therefore, had to become necessarily more and more deteriorated in its usefulness. The familiarities between Warden and attendants opened the doors to all sorts of abuses; intemperance prevailed among the employes from "the Boss" to the last helper; the Work-house women, kept all the day loose in the wards by direction of the Warden, and in utter disregard of the complaints of the Resident Physician, carried with the officers and attendants as profitable and immoral a trade of their persons as they were in the habit of doing when free in our streets. During my residence at the Asylum, two lunatics were contaminated with syphilis by these prostitutes, while the lewdness and scandalous scenes which have occurred between them and some of the attendants have been carried on without the Board acknowledging that their position imposed on them duties and responsibilities which allow no palliation of or indifference to a prostitution of the Asylum like this, a prostitution revolting to every feeling of decency.

The unsatisfactory condition of the Asylum having reached its utmost degree on last July, Commissioner Bowen, then President pro tem. of the Board, suggested to me that I should absent myself temporarily from the Asylum, during which absence, if the Warden and Matron would fail to place the Asylum in good order, the Board would discharge them. This assurance was given apparently in the most earnest and positive manner, and the advice was followed by the Resident Physician, who was granted leave of absence for one month from the last of July, but received at the same time a communication from the Board stating that, from that date, all complaints of the Resident Physician should be transmitted to the Board through the Warden, the Board reserving themselves the right of investigating. The purpose of this resolution is too obvious, and bears eloquent evidence of the good faith animating the Board of Commissioners in their attempts to secure the welfare of the insane and a proper administration of the City Asylum. I suggested that the Warden's requisitions for food, clothing, and other items for the patients should be examined and approved by the Resident Physician, who should be further authorized to inspect if such requisitions were properly filled up. Commissioner Bowen rejected the proposition, as "it would have looked envious to adopt such a course toward the Warden;" and yet it was the simplest and only efficient one, plainly indicated to prevent starvation of the patients and the other hardships they were suffering through incompetency of the Warden and inexcusable neglect of the Board.

The 1st of September, when I returned to the Asylum, expecting to see established therein the promised reforms, I found that the walls of some of the halls had been whitewashed, but the dilapidation and evidence of neglect were staring throughout the Asylum building. Here I may notice that the large amount spent to fit up the Asylum with every improvement continued of no avail, for the annunciator in the office, and the railroad and truck intended to convey the food from the kitchen through the cellar to the dumb-waiters, have never been used, in consequence of their imperfect and worthless construction; nor has the condition of the water-closets and baths proved more satisfactory, whereas the iron-work of all the window-guards and the door-locks, as well as a great deal of the wood-work of the building, are no less unsatisfactory, having required already as expensive repairs as it would have cost to furnish the Asylum with such new appurtenances of the proper kind. Turning to the patients, I found that they were infested with vermin; several exhibited marks of violence, and their friends and relatives complained to me about it; they had not been provided with Summer clothing, for which an appropriation had been paid over to the Board, the lunatics being, therefore, forced to be clad in Winter clothes throughout the Summer; the majority had no shoes or socks, and the deficiency of clothing was so great that patients had to wear for two or three weeks the same garments. The food was insufficient, and the kitchen department was managed altogether by the Work-house prisoners therein employed. The wards continued without furniture, the chapel without one single seat or bench, and not the least provision had actually been made for the real comfort or recreation of the patients. Then, again, lunatics had been transferred from the wards where the Resident Physician left them, and classified in the most injudicious manner by the Assistant Physician. Ward M, which had been, until the last of July, one of the most creditable divisions of the Asylum, was converted into the filthiest, where the unfortunate lunatics were most unmercifully left to the unchecked cruelty of their attendants, and the whole Asylum had been filled, during the absence of the Resident Physician, with a lower class of attendants than had theretofore been provided. The most striking change, however, was the unconcealed manner in which the Asylum had been converted into the most active James O'Brien Association, headed by the Warden and Assistant Physicians, it being no less an avowed and chief part of their programme—in which, as subsequent events have proved, they were countenanced by the Board—to force the Resident Physician out of his position. Commissioners Frear and Nicholson constituted a committee of investigation, ever ready to comply with the wishes of the Association, or to find plausible reasons to retain in their positions any of its worthy affiliates, or, if the circumstances of the case were of too serious a nature, to transfer the guilty party to other institutions, as in the case of McGloughlin, Ayers, McEvoy, and other attendants, brought before the Board on charges of drunkenness or cruel treatment to the patients. Some of these attendants, like McGloughlin and Adams, were sent back to the Asylum shortly after their suspension, against which improper action the Resident Physician always protested, forcing the Board to discharge such men from the Asylum.

The deaths of Ornell and Seymour at the hands of Thomas Farrell, indicted for their murder; the brutal treatment, within the six weeks following these crimes, of Raffaele, Petzhold, Cooper, Robinson, Eilers, O'Reilly, and Cassidi, by different attendants, several of whom have been retained at the Asylum; and finally, the death of Louis C. Samuels, are outrages corroborated by the testimony produced at the two recent Coroner's investigations, which are too fresh in the minds of the community to need repeating. Let me further add that the Governor of the State was more than satisfied, upon a personal examination of the Asylum, on the 4th inst., of the radical wrongs brought to your Honor's notice.

As to the Board of Commissioners, they never—while I was Resident Physician to the City Asylum for the Insane—deemed it necessary to inspect the Asylum wards or spend one hour therein to ascertain personally the real condition and requirements of the insane. Nor have they ever betrayed any interest to confer with the Resident Physician on any of the important subjects concerning the welfare of the lunatics under their charge. They did not see fit to listen to the Resident Physician's request, and go near the dying Ornell and Seymour, to receive from them—as was their duty—the complaints both made on their death-beds of the inhuman treatment they had received at the hands of Farrell, nor personally to acquaint themselves of the degraded condition of the patients in Ward M, while the Board, however, have pretended, and so declared at the last Coroner's inquest, to be investigating into the condition of the Asylum. But I forbear longer remarks, as no arguments could set forth more evidently the wrongs and the great danger of the present administration of the City Asylum for the Insane than is done by the foregoing truthful statements, which I am ready to substantiate.

Yours, respectfully,
M. G. ECHEVERRIA, M. D.

WOOL—Less activity has been noted in this line, owing, in good part, to the meagre offerings of supplies of desirable grades, and the extremely firm views of holders, who insist on full asking rates. Manufacturers have been purchasing with less eagerness and the trade inquiry has been less urgent. The arrivals have been light from the interior, for which higher prices have been claimed, and owners have been unwilling to part with their supplies for less than the extreme figures demanded for favorite goods. Foreign Wool has attracted considerable attention and has been quoted strong as to values....From Boston the report is of an unsettled market, prices having a wide range and being very irregular. The Commercial Bulletin of that city says: "Of Western fleece Wools there have been but few sales, owing partly to the limited amount now upon the market, and partly to the extreme high prices asked by some holders, while at the same time many of the wool houses have not got into working order again. The sales have been well up to what might be reasonably expected, considering all these facts. The doubt as to the financial condition of some of our manufacturers, who lost heavily by the fire, has also interfered with trade, dealers not caring to sell on long time to all buyers. There seems to be a feeling that some of the holders of wool are asking too much, and the fact that but few sales are effected at the figures named seems to indicate that such is the case. Pulled Wools have advanced fully as much as fleece. The lot mentioned in our report of sales below, as bringing 77½c., was some of Billings' best and very choice. California Wool is selling well at a fair advance on former prices, and holders seem satisfied with existing rates. In foreign Wool there is an advance of from 4c.@6c. ⅌ lb., according to quality, the best grades advancing most."....From Philadelphia, the advices are of a much tamer market, though the advance previously noted, of 5c.@6c. ⅌ lb. is sustained, on very moderate offerings, holders appearing indifferent about realizing at even present rates.

FREIGHTS—Trade has been checked by the scarcity of room, both on berth and charter, especially that suited to the Grain business; rates have favored shipowners, on a fair inquiry for accommodations....For Liverpool, the reported engagements since our last include, by steam, 950 bales Cotton, at ½d.@9-16d. ⅌ lb.; 1,100 bbls. MONDAY, Nov. 25—P. M.

The Stock Exchange continued today under the same speculative excitement as at the close of last week, incident to the corner in the North-west Common Stock. The general market advances on the success of this movement, and a large business was done in the Western Railroad Stocks and in Western Telegraph and Pacific Mail at advancing figures. The Stocks understood to be on the programme of the Gould-Clark combination are Lake Shore, Union Pacific, Ohios, and North-west Preferred. The last named was suddenly taken hold of this morning, and from 87 ₱ cent. was advanced to 102 ₱ cent., reacting at a later hour to 95 @93½ ₱ cent. The North-west Common corner was kept up to 170@190@180@175, at the early Board, but was relaxed in the afternoon to 150 ₱ cent. Private settlements, as well as settlements through the Exchange Board are going on, but whether any of these include the differences between Jay Gould, as the cornerer, and his quondam confederate in the Erie robbery, Henry N. Smith, seems to be doubtful. Nor has this anything to do, apparently, with the advance in the other Western Stocks and New-York Central.

The sudden and great advance in both the North-west Stocks has called out the Convertible Bonds of the Road and its branches. These privileges do not amount, as now outstanding, to any important total. It was notified to the Exchange today that $445,000 of the Peninsula Branch Bonds are subject to conversion, one-half in Common and one-half in Preferred Stock.

The general speculation opened strong this morning, and the business proved large in Rock Island, Lake Shore, Ohios, Union Pacific, Western Telegraph, and Pacific Mail at advancing figures. The Stock of the Erie Road was exceptionally lower than on Saturday.

The sales of Gold were at 112⅞@113@113⅛ ₱ cent. There was some talk of another squeeze in the Cash Gold in a day or two, but this threat was not regarded as very serious, and had less influence on the market than the stronger feeling in the Exchange market. The rates for Bills on London were 108⅛@108⅜ ₱ cent., sixty days, and 110⅛@110⅜ ₱ cent., sight and short sight. The London Cables reflect a better feeling in the Money market, and quote the English Funds higher and firm.

At the late session of the Exchange Board, an order was made upon the President of the Board by Messrs. Garland, Martin & Co., one of the three confederate Gould-Smith firms on the Street, to buy in 4,000 shares of North-west Stock for account of Messrs. Drake Brothers, who, it seems, were used as intermediates in a loan of the Stock from Gould's Brokers to the Brokers of Smith, the latter being also one of the confederate firms. The Stock was bought in under the rule at 170@200 ₱ cent., but the explanation of Messrs. Drake satisfied the Exchange Room that they could not be held for the resulting difference, and we are inclined to believe that there is no serious intention to hold them to this responsibility, as there is no question that the real default is on the part of Henry N. Smith. The probability is that there was some sort of necessity on the part of Messrs. Garland & Co., acting as the Brokers of Gould, to force a settlement pro forma, through the Exchange Board. They claim that they could not otherwise hold Henry N. Smith to his responsibility, as his Brokers, another of the confederate firms, deny that they have any North-west contracts, for Smith's account, on their books. In any event, it is not believed that Messrs. Drake can be held in the transaction.

As far as we are advised this afternoon there has been no general settlement or even formal recognition of his contracts in North-west stock by Mr. Henry N. Smith, nor has he paid out any considerable differences on the deliveries of the stock for his account. It is assumed for granted that he will resort to all sorts of delays and expedients to save his money, but the other party are sharply after him, and the hope is he will either be compelled to pay up or leave the Street.

At 4 o'clock this Afternoon there was increased firmness at the Stock Exchange, on the Western Roads and Miscellaneous Shares, and the following quotations were made as compared with Saturday Afternoon:

BANKING AND FINANCIAL.

☞ BANKING-HOUSE OF FISK & HATCH,
No. 5 Nassau-st., New-York.

We receive DEPOSITS and allow interest on daily balances, issue interest-bearing CERTIFICATES OF DEPOSIT, make COLLECTIONS in all parts of the United States and Canadas, and execute orders at the Stock Exchange for INVESTMENT STOCKS AND BONDS.

We buy and sell, as usual, GOVERNMENT, CENTRAL PACIFIC, and WESTERN PACIFIC BONDS, and especially recommend to the attention of investors the SIX PER CENT. FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS OF THE CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY, which are issued either coupon or registered, in denominations of $100, $500, and $1,000; interest is paid in gold, May and November. At their present price they yield over seven per cent. income in gold.

This great work is about completed; there are now nearly 400 miles finished, and only about 25 miles remain to unite the Atlantic tide-waters to the Ohio River Valley by the shortest and easiest rail-route possible.

The quantities of white oak, poplar, pine, walnut, and other valuable timbers; the cannel, splint, and bituminous coals; the varieties of iron ores; the limestone, salt, and other products, render the route of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad probably the most attractive location for coal-mining, iron-making, and kindred manufactures and industries, in the United States.

The Company have, at considerable expense, caused a geological survey to be made of the route of the road by Prof. Ridgeway. Copies of his valuable Report, with map, and also a pamphlet containing the latest information in reference to the present condition and future prospects of the road, can be had on application at our office.

FISK & HATCH.

Jay Cooke & Co.,

Proceedings Against Ex-Collector Bailey's Sureties.

On Friday last, in the United States Circuit Court, default was ordered to be taken in the matter of the bondsmen of Joshua F. Bailey, the defaulting Internal Revenue Collector of the Fourth and Thirty-second Districts. The bond was for $100,000, and by its wording makes, it is said, each of the following sureties liable, jointly and severally, for the full amount of the bond: George Douglass, George Opdyke, Elliott C. Cowdin, Thomas C. Durant, Henry Clews, Augustus Schell, and Charles P. Kirkland. The United States filed a declaration in the matter commencing suit against these sureties, and the defendants filed a plea, to which the Government put in an answer and replication. To this replication the defendants demurred, and, yesterday, before Judge Woodruff, sitting in Chambers, Mr. Tracey, of counsel for one of the defendants, moved to open the default, on the ground that the Government ought to have given fourteen days' notice instead of twelve days, according to the act of June, 1872, making the practice in United States Courts conform to the Code.

District-Attorney Davis objected, and Judge Woodruff reserved his decision. Judge Davis announced that he was ready to submit the matter without argument.

The Newsboys.

The poor little newsboys are looking forward to a good Thanksgiving dinner, for which they are mainly dependent on the kindness of their friends, who, it is to be hoped, will not forget them this year. At the same time the people may remember that a cold Winter is setting in, and the little ones are poorly clad to meet it. Any contributions of clothing or food designed for them will be thankfully received by Mr. C. O'Connor, Superintendent of the Newsboys' Lodging-house, No. 49 Park-place.

Gov. HOFFMAN, it is rumored, is thinking of filling a number of vacancies under the State Government. It is difficult to see any good reason for his doing so. His appointments would necessarily be temporary, and cannot be expected to meet the approval of the Senate on general grounds. No one likes to see an official, in the closing days of his term, exhibiting an intense eagerness to appoint all his friends to snug places. The Governor elect may be depended on to choose good men for the public service, and aside from selfish considerations, why should Gov. HOFFMAN strive to leave no room for the exercise of discretion in this field?

There appears to be no settled opinion among Republicans as to what is proper to be done at Albany in reference to New-York, further than that the last vestiges of Tammany corruption must be swept out of our Municipal Government. How this can be best accomplished, and in what way the cause of local reform can be best served by legislation, are questions which remain undetermined. It may at least be hoped that the majority of the Legislature will assemble entirely uncommitted to any of the schemes of politicians, and will be free to investigate the whole subject before deciding upon any policy. The coming Legislature is charged with no task so important as the revision of the affairs of this City, and it should bring to it the most careful deliberation, and a willingness to consider without bias the suggestions which may be made by those who have been identified with the cause of municipal reform.

The Insurance Commissioner of Massachusetts cautions the citizens of Boston against doing business with agents of foreign insurance companies not authorized by law to issue policies in that State, and possibly unworthy of patronage, from their financial weakness. Every company, he says, seeking business in Massachusetts, and financially worthy of credit, will be afforded every facility for complying with the law, so as to enable it to do business in the State, and any company that neglects this duty thereby furnishes primâ facie evidence of its untrustworthiness.

An address has been issued by Hon. HENRY T. BLOW, Chairman of the Republican Committee of Missouri, which should receive the careful attention of the Republicans of that State. The result of the election there was not altogether unexpected, and it shows that, by patient submission to the laws and due attention to general education, Missouri can speedily be made a Republican State. Emigration is flowing to it more copiously than to almost any other Western State, being attracted by the genial climate, rich soil, and abundant mineral wealth. This emigration will be largely Republican, and we hope to see the party speedily regain the power lost in 1870, by the trickery and treachery of a few ambitious leaders.

If the Commissioners of Charities and Correction place the slightest value on their reputation, they will seek an early and thorough investigation of the charges made against them by Dr. ECHEVERRIA. These charges will be found in a report published in another column, which every one should read. The Commissioners should remember that no investigation by them will answer. An investigation by a higher authority is needed to establish any confidence whatever in their conduct. There is one man, at least, among the Commissioners, who has a fair name to lose. He may be helpless in the hands of his associates. If so, let him show it, or he will be irretrievably ruined in a community where he has hitherto been respected. The case presented by Dr. ECHEVERRIA is almost too horrible to contemplate. If it cannot be instantly met, the Commissioners will incur the most general and just public indignation.

It having been proposed to elect Gov. OGLESBY, of Illinois, to the United States Senate, some members of the Legislature are smitten with scruples as to his eligibility. The constitution of the State declares that "the Governor shall not be eligible to any other office during the period to which he shall have been elected," and Gov. OGLESBY, it is held, cannot be chosen to the Senate on this account. This position is untenable. The provision referred to does not profess to relate to other than State offices. Even if it did relate in terms to the office of United States Senator, it would be void, as several well-defined precedents show. A State can prohibit a United States Senator or a Representative in Congress from holding a State office, but it cannot determine, directly or indirectly, who shall be Representatives or Senators. That is a matter already settled by the National Constitution.

The official vote of New-York for President has been declared by the Board of State Canvassers at Albany. The total vote of the State is 827,967, of which Gen. GRANT received 440,746, and Mr. GREELEY 387,221, the Republican majority being 53,525. In 1868 the whole vote was 849,766, of which the Republicans had 419,883, and the Democrats 429,883; there has thus been a decrease in the total vote of 21,799, the Republicans gaining 20,863, and the Democrats falling off 42,662. When the Democrats are again inclined to increase their chances by forming combinations with soured Republicans, they will do well to recall these comparisons.

It would seem, by the London Times' dispatches, that BISMARCK has been unable to persuade or compel the Prussian aristocracy to accept liberal changes in the local Governments. Forty members will be added to the Upper Chamber of the National Legislature, and this will be the beginning of the end of Junkerdom.

According to the latest intelligence, President THIERS has failed to secure a majority of the Committee to which his message was referred. A report will be made demanding a responsible Ministry, and the rupture with the Right is complete.

Washington dispatches show that the Secretary of the Navy will make some aggressive propositions in his report. The statements concerning the condition of the navy are not flattering to the national pride. If we are to begin over again, it is to be hoped that the next ten years will not give us fifty more iron-clads, of which only ten are fit for service, while twenty are condemned as good for nothing but old iron before they have fired a gun.

Some Facts About Wall-Street.

The swindling scheme of the bulls in North-western stock has had one effect which ought to attract public attention pretty closely. It has so confused the transactions by which the banks are compelled to be guided, that they do not feel willing to give to merchants the accommodation required. While brokers were able to get money, yesterday, at seven per cent., gold, to aid in carrying on their peculiar operations, mercantile paper of the best kind, "double-named and gilt-edged," in the slang of the street, was compelled to submit to twelve per cent. The same state of affairs is to be traced in other cities, and from similar causes.

Another feature of the Wall-street game is its connection with the Erie suit. JAY GOULD boldly charges in his affidavit, presented to the Court, yesterday, that he was arrested for the purpose of breaking the corner in North-western, and knocking down the price of certain securities in which his accusers are largely interested. On the other hand, his opponents deny that they were influenced by any such motive, or that GOULD'S arrest was connected at all with any stock gambling operations. We trust they tell the exact truth. If they mean to perform fully the duty of honest men, they have motive enough for bringing GOULD to justice without any selfish incentive, and no one will blame them if GOULD'S quarrel with his old partner in fraud, HENRY N. SMITH, has been used by them. If the public can get its due, it will be of small consequence that it was obtained by rogues falling out. But the Erie Directors should make no mistake as to what the public is entitled to. The Directors are not merely a committee of shareholders, acting as the representatives of other shareholders. They have assumed the position of representatives of the decent portion of the capitalists of the United States, and, as such, it is their duty to promptly exhaust the powers of the law in compelling GOULD and his confederates to give up their plunder. GOULD has now effected an apparent coalition with the powerful Vanderbilt interest, while the Erie directors have temporarily, at any rate, called to their aid some of GOULD'S old companions in guilt. The suit against GOULD is thus curiously related to the stock swindlers of Wall-street. The directors cannot hope to allay all suspicion as to their own good faith, except by bold, prompt, and persistent action.

If the wretched game in Wall-street does not attract public attention by tightening money for legitimate uses, and by its connection with the Erie scandals it ought to do so by the flood of light it throws on the dealings of the stock jobbers. No more transparent swindle was ever exposed. Men of moderate means, dazzled by the fortunes made in the street, and confused by the slang so artfully employed in describing the street operations, can hardly fail to see that the North-western corner was a deliberate cheat, in which a few made much, and a great many lost heavily. The operation had not one honest feature about it. The enormous changes in price were caused by no changes in value. The losers and the winners had simply agreed to bet an indefinite amount on the one side that by a certain time the stock would be lower, on the other that it would be higher, and the latter won. The men who lost had sold stock which they did not possess, and agreed that on a certain day they would—not deliver it, but—pay the difference in price if it went up, and they were to have received the difference if it had gone down. What makes it clear that the transaction was a dishonest one is the fact that the ostensible sellers agreed to pay the difference on more stock than actually exists. What have reasonable men, with a decent business to attend to, to do with such scandalous gambling as this? What right have men with credit to sustain, obligations to meet, and the demands of honest business to consider, to dabble even on the edges of this pool of corruption and rascality? It is not to be denied that there are legitimate stock operations on the street. But investing capital in stocks, whose value must, in the long run, depend on the management of the property represented, and investing it with due regard to actual values, is one thing. Staking a "margin" on the price of stocks at a future day, is quite another. One is the act of an honorable man engaged in legitimate business. The other is the act of a blackleg or a blackleg's victim.

Local Estimates for 1873.

We print this morning a detailed statement of the estimated expenditures of the various City departments for the year ending Dec. 31, 1873. The Board of Apportionment—consisting of the Mayor, Controller, Commissioner of the Department of Public Works, and President of the Department of Public Parks—meets today to deal with these estimates at its discretion, and to set aside such sums as it may think necessary "to the various departments and purposes of the City and County Governments." This must be done by the concurring vote of all the members present. One obvious peculiarity of these estimates, as now submitted for the action of the Board, is that they are drawn up in great part by men whose ideas of administrative economy have been formed in the school of TWEED and SWEENY, while the spending of these proceeds will, under their supervison and audit, be in the hands of men acting under a régime of retrenchment and reform. It cannot be too clearly understood that these estimates, as finally passed by the Board of Apportionment, will really determine the taxation of next year. This is the only part of our local expenditure to which the pruning-knife can be applied. We must raise just such a proportion of State tax as the Legislature sees fit to burden us with; we must pay every cent of interest falling due upon the enormous debt which we hold as a Tammany legacy. About two-fifths of our local expenditures, and consequently our local taxation, are thus a fixed quantity, and if our taxes for 1873 are to be kept under three per cent., we must look to the Board of Apportionment today to see that the expenditures of the various Departments are restricted within business limits, utterly regardless of what are called "political" necessities—i. e., the interests of a crowd of sinecurists and the other traditions of a long reign of Tammany extravagance.

Let people who are grumbling, therefore, and grumbling with reason, over the high taxes of 1872, keep a sharp lookout for the reductions which ought to be made upon the estimates now submitted by heads of departments, who have, for the most part, no interest whatever in keeping them down to the lowest point compatible with efficiency, but who, on the contrary, have every inducement to claim a liberal margin either for themselves or their predecessors. A better practical verdict upon executive extravagance in this City could not be cited than that given in September, 1871, by Mr. WM. A. BOOTH, and his fellow-investigators into our Municipal records:

> "Your Committee do not hesitate to assert that there is not a railway or manufacturing company in the United States (and there are several such which could be named) whose annual receipts and disbursements nearly approximate to those of the City and County of New-York, whose expenses for receiving and disbursing money, auditing, recording, and keeping accounts, including the services of officers, clerks, messengers, and others, amount to one-tenth of those incurred in the administration of our City Government for those purposes during the last two or three years."

The evil here adverted to is yet very far from being entirely cured.

A New Link Between Borrowers and Lenders.

One of the most curious, and often inexplicable things to the ordinary mind, is the permanent difference in the rates of interest in various countries. It is no matter of surprise that it should cost twenty-five per cent. at times in California to borrow money for a mining venture, while all that the Government pays in England is three per cent. for its loans. The difference of security would sufficiently explain the contrast. But in London there are hundreds of millions of capital seeking investment, and contented to obtain two and a half per cent. in land, or three per cent. in consols, or five per cent. in uncertain railroad investments, while in New-York there are plenty of the best securities in the world, offering seven per cent. interest. Mr. WILLIAM B. ASTOR or Mr. STEWART would not, if they could, exchange their bonds and mortgages in this City for the best European Government bonds.

Yet the English capitalist gets only three per cent. on the security of the Government, while here he could obtain seven per cent. So, again, with our railroad securities. We offer bonds on roads doing an enormous business and most carefully managed, but the European capitalist prefers his three per cents there to six or seven per cent. bonds here. Even our own Government bonds scarcely stand higher in European markets than those of some very petty and inferior States, though to us here they seem a security as solid as the hills.

The contrast between New-York and the interior is almost equally striking. The current rate of interest in Western cities on real estate securities, is ten per cent. It has been as high as fifteen per cent. in St. Louis, and eighteen per cent. in San Francisco. But at this moment there are plenty of borrowers in all the Western States, offering ten per cent. on securities as firm in value as anything in the world: that is, not on houses alone, or "unimproved land," but on city lots, taken at half their value, amid a population increasing in wealth beyond all past experience of history. Yet our capitalists here are glad to get seven or even six per cent., and sometimes on securities of banks or railroads, no better. Among the many causes of this difference in the rate of interest, are ignorance and prejudice. The English capitalist fears that New-York may repudiate; he does not know how to discriminate between unsound and trustworthy securities; he dreads the effect of war; or he fears he cannot foreclose in case of non-payment; or that such investments may not be easily transferable or convertible.

The New-York capitalist, on the other hand, fancies Western cities to be mere mushrooms, which may wither in a night; or he prefers his investments nearer home; or dreads "Western dishonesty" and speculation. It has always been a matter of surprise to us that some very trustworthy and well-known American house—like Brown Brothers, for instance—which English capitalists would trust to, does not attempt more systematically to connect English capital with American investments, especially those secured by real estate. Of course, every great banking-house is continually connecting the vast unemployed capital of Europe with our railroads and Government loans. But the real-estate investment or security is what would most tempt out foreign capital, especially from London. An effort has been made during the past year to draw out the immense floating capital of London to foreign Government investments. The capital of the Association is invested in foreign Government bonds, and then an average rate of interest—say seven per cent.—is paid the stockholders, and the balance received pays expenses and accumulates a surplus, the idea being that the risks of investors are thus averaged, and that an association could ascertain better than individuals the safest investment. We have an impression, however, that the effort has not been very successful, probably owing to the deep-seated distrust on the part of English investors of "foreign bonds."

The Yankees, who are always the first in business as well as other inventions, have attempted to "make connection" between capital in the Eastern States and the Western by an ingenious device. A well-known Hartford house have received during the past twenty years trust funds from the Deaf and Dumb Asylum, Trinity College, and many other charitable and literary institutions in Connecticut, as well as from executors and private investors, and have lent money through the Western cities, taking securities on city lots and improved property. To the investors here they issue nine per cent. bonds, with coupons, which are secured by mortgages there; they making the proper inquiries and searches of title. If such a business were started between New-York and London, the success would depend—as it has depended during the last twenty years with the Hartford house—on the integrity and good judgment of the banking or investing company, connecting the lenders with the borrowers. The benefit to both countries—to this country in supplying more capital, and to Great Britain in better payment for its loans—need not be pointed out.

The Paradise of Murderers.

Yesterday we published a list of one hundred and thirty-nine homicides known to have been committed in this City during the last three years. Of the perpetrators of these tragedies, only forty-two have been convicted of any offense whatever, and but two have been hung. An examination of the criminal record from the 1st of January, 1872, to the 2d of November, instant, shows even a more shameful mockery of justice. During the last-named period, fifty-five persons have been arrested on the charge of felonious killing, of whom but eight have received any punishment. Let us examine the several sentences allotted to these eight convicted criminals. The severest sentence so far inflicted is that of LAVERY, who murdered a policeman, and was sentenced to imprisonment for life. There is good reason to believe that this scoundrel owed the comparative severity of his sentence to the vigorous demand of the respectable part of the Press that the Courts should extend some protection to the brave and faithful members of the Police. Two Italians, ATELLA and ROSA, were sentenced to four and three years' imprisonment respectively. The Italian murderer, other things being equal, is in more danger of punishment than any criminal of any other nationality. The Italian vote is too small to be worth purchasing, and the average Italian is too poor and friendless to be an object of interest to District-Attorneys and Judges. JOHN B. MORTIMER was also sentenced to three years' imprisonment. He had merely stabbed a man, and as things are managed by our Courts, three years must be regarded as an unusually heavy sentence for so trivial an offense. PATRICK CLIFFORD, who kicked a woman to death, was taught the heinousness of his offence by being sent to Sing Sing for two years, and two other murderers, one of whom was a boy without any political value, were sentenced to one year's imprisonment each. The eighth and last man on the list is DAVID MURPHY, who was actually sentenced to death, but as there is no probability that his sentence will ever be inflicted, it is not worth while to consider the circumstances of his case.

Of this year's crop of homicides, we therefore find that one has been sentenced to death, a sentence at which he probably laughs; one has been sent to prison for life; and six others have received terms of imprisonment amounting in the aggregate to fourteen years, being an average of two years and four months for each murderer. In other words, a little more than fourteen per cent. of the whole number of arrested homicides have been sentenced by the Courts, and, with the exception of one murderer sentenced to death and another to imprisonment for life, the average penalty paid by those who have incurred any punishment whatever has been a term of two years and four months in prison. It should, moreover, be remembered that we are now speaking only of arrested felons, whereas numerous murders have been committed, the perpetrators of which are still unknown.

Will any man pretend that the law, as administered in this City, is a terror to evil-doers, or that the fear of punishment deters any would-be murderer from the commission of crime? He knows that, even if he is discovered and arrested, his chances of escaping scot-free are nearly seven to one, while, even should he be convicted, he is confident that he will never be brought to the gallows. How much longer must we wait for an enforcement of law which will make murder in the Metropolis at least as unsafe an occupation as pocket-picking?

Guns and Armor Ships.

The iron-clad navy of England is now found to be a great mistake, and the reason lies in a nutshell. Naval architects have been as busy as bees, packing on thickness after thickness of iron, until at last what is called the "limit of flotation" has been reached. In other words, the utmost amount of iron has been fastened on a ship that the utmost buoyancy of material, compatible with sea-worthiness, will enable her to carry. This done, the vast cost and untiring ingenuity expended during the past ten years on the English navy, are found to have gone for nothing, or next to nothing. The guns have outstripped the ships, and the weightiest armor floatable is easily perforated by cannon several grades less powerful than can be taken to sea. Hence, we are promised an exact repetition of the old experience after the invention of gunpowder. At first, the idea was to resist the new and terrible projectile by piling on the soldier heavier armor. It was soon found that no armor could resist the penetrative power of improved fire-locks, but that, on the other hand, the heavier the armor, the more helpless became the wearer, and the more at the mercy of his gun-bearing enemy. The great British ships that were the wonder, and were to be the terror, of the world are in much the same plight. Speed has been almost entirely sacrificed in their construction, and yet they are not gun-proof. It would seem that a Brooklyn or a Kearsarge, provided with the newest and best artillery, would be an overmatch now for a Glatton or a Devastation; and that those vast batteries of teak and solid metal, but for the sharp lesson of experience, might as well never have been built at all.

What is now demanded is, a fighting ship that can sail, just as the old demand was for a fighting man who could move fast. The power of the new guns is such that they can make sieves of the iron-clads, and send them to the bottom like so many old kettles. A new argument is thus supplied for the ancient controversy about preparing in time of peace for war. So far as navies are concerned, or the experience of armored ships, the maxim seems worthless. To be sure, it may be said that but for energetic progress and fresh inventions with artillery, this conclusion, as regards iron-clads, would not have been arrived at. But the building of the armored fleet has been accomplished at prodigious expense by the nation, while the improvement of the guns has chiefly been obtained through the outlay and ambition of private individuals. Thus, in presence of these continual changes and improvements, it may be contended, with some show of reason, that the plan of the United States, as illustrated in the late war, of keeping a navy at low strength, so as to profit by the best-known improvements in the immediate hour of need, has much to recommend it. For a great maritime Power to find herself, on the outbreak of hostilities, in a maritime sense, almost helpless—in possession, that is to say, of a navy that has cost millions, but which might as well have been cast into the sea as set afloat upon it—is a very serious thing; and such, in case of war, would be the position, according to her own naval constructors and leading journals, of England at this moment.

To meet the new emergency, a plan has been proposed by Major MONCRIEFF, which is exciting much interest and discussion. This gentleman starts with the proposition, (1,) that ships cannot protect high sides by armor; (2,) that the adoption of a low free-board, and combining it with breastwork and turrets, has sprung from this difficulty. He therefore suggests a change more sweeping still. He would dispense with the armored side, except a ribband or belt below the water-line, but would have an armored deck slightly elevated, only above that line, and ending at the belt. Amidships he would place a kind of iron fortress to carry guns, engines, and machinery. This seems to be a modification of our own monitors, and we are not made sure by Major MONCRIEFF'S description that it is necessarily any improvement upon them. He claims great superiority, by his method, in lightness and speed over any of the English armored ships now afloat, but their weight is notoriously enormous, and we doubt whether Major MONCRIEFF has yet succeeded in solving the difficult problem he has set before himself. No doubt armor may be made highly valuable for fixed batteries, for the defense of harbors and the like; but in the case of cruisers such impediments, we fancy, will ultimately go the way of the heavy breast-plates and helmets which, after the invention of gunpowder, were soon found to cost more lives than they saved.

MINOR TOPICS.

The manner in which the late Park Commissioners, under the leadership of Judge HILTON, meddled and marred in the Central Park was yesterday explained to our readers. Mr. HILTON, it seems, is, in his own opinion, not only a landscape gardener, an architect, and a naturalist, but he is also an accomplished art critic. As a landscape gardener he cut down, set out, or trimmed trees in the Park with a boldness that few men would have shown. As an architect he built all sorts of useless and obnoxious structures in that once beautiful resort, and as a naturalist he condemned Mr. HAWKINS' models of extinct animals, and had them summarily broken to pieces. It is, however, as a critic of sculpture that he is most wonderful. He objected to the dark color of a bronze Eve, and had her neatly painted white, so that she should be more acceptable to Caucasian eyes. If there is anything of which Mr. HILTON does not consider himself a judge, we should really like to hear it named. Suppose he were to give us his views on twins? Doubtless, even Mrs. Gamp would respect the opinions of such an admirable Hilton.

On the morning after the Boston fire, we announced that the loss would be about eighty millions of dollars, and a day or two afterwards, upon receiving more precise information, we estimated that it would be about seventy millions of dollars. The latter sum proves to be as near the truth as it is possible to arrive at in estimating losses by fire. At the same time, and for several days after the fire, the Herald was insisting that the loss was two hundred millions of dollars, and has never been able to give its readers the facts in so simple a matter. It should never deal with anything nearer home than the equator.

Considerable excitement was caused in Savannah, Ga., on Friday last by the discharge of the Grand Jury summoned for the United States District Court. It appears that the number of jurymen had been reduced by sickness, (in many cases, probably, feigned,) below the standard required by the law, and this fact being brought to the attention of the Court, the discharge of the jury followed as a legal necessity. The witnesses in attendance in the cases of prisoners charged with Kuklux outrages were also, on motion of counsel, permitted to return to their homes, which is looked upon by the victims of these outrages as equivalant to abandoning the prosecution against the outlaws. The proceedings of the Court have caused great alarm among the negroes and loyal whites of the Kuklux districts, and they will serve to encourage their enemies to renew their outrages.

There is an Austrian law by virtue of which the Government has a right to take possession of a railway which is badly managed, and manage it in the interests of the public, and at the cost of its proprietors. Under this law, an Austrian railway was recently seized by the Government, and is now under Government control. It is evident that the Austrians do not imagine that the state grants enormous privileges to railway corporations merely in order to enable the stockholders to squeeze as much money as possible out of the traveling public. That conception of railway rights is exclusively our own idea. While no one wishes that the Austrian practice in reference to badly-managed railways should be followed by our State Governments, every one who is not a member of a railway corporation would be glad to see the Austrian theory, that the railway is the servant of the public, adopted and acted upon. Until our legislation is based upon that theory, railway corporations will be as selfish and insolent as they find it to their pecuniary advantage to be.

It is not an encouraging glimpse of Western civilization which we get in the fact that Judge LUCAS, of Kansas, having fined some monte gamblers, was compelled to make arsenals of his pockets in consequence of their threats against his life. Nor is the view improved by the further fact that the gamblers had sufficient influence with the police of Kansas City to have the Judge arrested on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. There is plainly as much need in Kansas as in New-York for the prompt and vigorous repression of the dangerous classes.

The colored people of Lousville, Ky., are about to start a weekly paper, to be devoted to the development and education of freedmen. The title of the paper will be The Planet, and it is to be entirely devoid of political bias. The True Democrat, of Louisville, has a kind word in encouragement of the enterprise, and hopes that it will receive aid in the way of subscriptions from the whites as well as the blacks.

The New Major-General.

Brig.-Gen. Irwin McDowell, who has just been appointed Major-General United States Army, vice Meade, deceased, is a native of Ohio, from which State he was appointed to a cadetship in the United States Military Academy at West Point in 1834. He graduated in July, 1838, and was immediately promoted to the rank of Brevet Second Lieutenant. He was assistant instructor in tactics at West Point, from September to November, 1841, and Adjutant to October, 1845; he was promoted to a First Lieutenancy in October, 1842; Aid-de-Camp to Gen. Wool, from October, 1845, to May, 1847, and took an active part in the war with Mexico. He received the honorary rank of Brevet Captain for gallant conduct in the battle of Buena Vista, Feb. 23, 1847; promoted to post of Assistant Adjutant-General, with rank of Captain, in May, 1847, and relinquished rank in line in February, 1851; Assistant Adjutant-General, with the rank of Major, March 31, 1856; Brevet Brigadier-General, May, 1861. He was the General first in command of the Army of the Potomac, and continued in that position until after the battle of Bull Run, when he was succeeded by McClellan. During the war he held many important commands, and since peace was restored has been in charge of the Department of the East as senior Brigadier in the army.

The Property-Owners on Bedford-Avenue, Brooklyn, Repudiating the Cost of Paving the Avenue.

An argument was yesterday made before Justice Tappan, to show cause why the writ of certiorari, granted by Justice Pratt on Nov. 16, in the case of the Bedford-avenue tar-pavement, should be quashed, and the Corporation Counsel, appearing for the city, contended that the work had been done by virtue of an act of the Legislature, and the city had unwillingly advanced the money to the Commission authorized to carry out the work. Now that the work had been done, the persons benefited were unwilling to bear the burden. Mr. Tracy, appearing for the property owners, claimed that the act creating the Commission was unconstitutional; the advancement of the money illegal, and the acts of the Commissioners irregular. The Corporation Counsel contended that the city was not answerable for the acts of the Commissioners, as they were State officers under the act. Decision reserved.

Gov. Kellogg's Search for Justice—The Arguments to Occupy the Whole Week.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

NEW-ORLEANS, Nov. 25.—The argument of the case of Kellogg vs. Warmoth et al. was commenced today before Judge Durell, sitting as United States Circuit Judge, United States District-Attorney Beckwith opening, and occupying nearly the whole day. He is to be followed by T. J. Semmes, ex-Confederate Member of Congress, for Warmoth. The counsel for Kellogg, in addition to Mr. Beckwith, are W. H. Hunt and E. E. Billings, Esqs. Warmoth's counsel, besides the one mentioned, are Randall Hunt, J. G. Eustis, and W. W. Howe, who, on Saturday, resigned his place on the Supreme Bench to assist his friend Warmoth. The argument of counsel will most probably occupy the week. Judge Howe intends to urge the unconstitutionality of the Enforcement acts of Congress. He is a New-York carpet-bagger, and was formerly a partner of Judge Monell of your Superior Court.

The Herald's dispatch from Washington regarding Marshal Packard's requisitions and his accounts are utterly false. His accounts for the fiscal year ending 30th June, 1872, show an indebtedness or balance due from the Government of $5.517 48, which has not yet been adjusted, and the disbursements since that time made by him have exceeded the advances over $5,000. His accounts have all been rendered to the Government. So much for the Herald and New-Orleans Times canard.

THE NEWPORT BOND SWINDLE.

Name of the Operator Engaged in Victimizing Mr. Read Ascertained to be William Ellis.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Nov. 25.—The heavy swindling operation practiced on Oliver Read, Esq., the facts of which appeared in your columns on Sunday, is the principal theme of conversation in this city. The local papers publish accounts of the transaction today, and they are determined never again to heed the advice given them to "keep dark." They had information of the affair, but were politely requested to suppress it, as the interested party did not wish the country to know, until he was ready himself to reveal, the way in which he had been victimized. The name of the man was ascertained to-night to be Wm. Ellis, and he was registered as such at the United States Hotel. Mr. Read called at the hotel, and as soon as he saw the signature immediately recollected the name as the one given by the man at the time of the negotiation. It was negotiated upon the same date also as the one on which the sale was effected. Doubtless, however, it is an assumed name.

THE NAVY.

Forthcoming Report of the Secretary—Important Recommendations.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Important recommendations on the efficiency of the navy will be made in the forthcoming report of Secretary Robeson. It has been found that more money has often been spent in the repair of old vessels, as authorized by Congress, than would serve in the construction of new ones of greater strength and of improved model and appurtenances. As an instance of this, the Pensacola cost $325,000, and the repairs more than twice as much, namely, $760,000. As to other vessels of the navy, including the Guerriere, Nevada, Iowa, and Vanderbilt, to put them into thoroughly good condition, would require an amount of money far exceeding their original cost. Their timbers are much decayed, the ships having been built of unsound white oak. The necessities of the situation, however, have required expenditures upon them to meet emergencies without permanent benefit.

Congress, at the late session, authorized the Secretary of the Navy to sell worn-out vessels, and also useless material, at the several navy-yards. It is known that there are such accumulations there, which originally cost millions of dollars, and which were, for the most part, never applied to practical purposes.

Several of the worn-out vessels are soon to be sold at auction, and others of like character will also be offered to the highest bidder.

The opinion of naval officers is that there should be at least twenty good, active steam-vessels always in condition to be immediately used. About a year ago, when there was such an excitement at Havana as induced the Consul-General at that city to telegraph our Government to send vessels thither for the protection of American citizens, it was difficult to immediately find the vessels suitable for such an emergency, and the Secretary was therefore obliged to dispatch an iron-clad from Key West, together with four other vessels, not of formidable proportions, to that locality. Spain, at the time to which reference is made, had twenty-three vessels in the Gulf and the vicinity of the Island of Cuba. Our vessels, owing to this disparity of force, would have been unable to contend with those of Spain, in case of hostile movements on her part.

The Chief of the Bureau of Construction and Repairs will, it is understood, recommend that compound engines be placed in all our vessels, both as to economy of fuel and increase of speed, and that he will support his views by careful argument.

It has been ascertained from naval officers that not more than ten of the fifty iron-clad vessels can be rendered useful for naval purposes. Therefore the Government will dispose of the remainder of them; and as they will be sold for nothing better than old iron, it will be for the general benefit. The twenty light-draft monitors built during the war, at a cost of $16,000,000, never fired a gun, not having been called into active service.

A bill is now pending before the House of Representatives appropriating $3,000,000 for building ten sloops-of-war.

In view of the facts concerning the inefficiency of the navy, efforts will be made at the approaching session of Congress to completely reorganize it. A part of Secretary Robeson's report will be devoted to this subject, and he will repeat the recommendations in his last annual report, to supply the places of vessels which have become useless with those of good and sound construction, and urge that unless something is done in this direction our cruising navy, now by no means powerful, indeed scarcely respectable for a nation of our rank and responsibilities, will soon almost wholly pass out of existence as an arm of our national power.

OBITUARY.

Walter S. Griffith.

Mr. Walter S. Griffith, the Second Vice-President of the Chamber of Commerce, died at his residence in Brooklyn at an early hour yesterday morning, in the sixty-fourth year of his age, after a brief illness.

Mr. Griffith in former years was prominent as a forwarding merchant, and one of the incorporators of the New-York Warehousing Company, the first incorporated company of the character established in this City, and at the time of his death was the second presiding officer of the Chamber of Commerce, and as such he was ever active in promoting the influence and usefulness of that institution. He was also President of the Home Life Insurance Company, of which he was the originator, and to his administration the great success of the Company is mainly due. Socially, Mr. Griffith was kind and affable, a man of fervent piety, and whose whole life was devoted to the moral and religious elevation of his fellow-men.

Reception to Minister Washburne.

When it became known that Minister Washburne was about to return from France, several members of the Union League Club proposed a banquet in his honor, and the invitation met with a favorable response when tendered him on arrival. Hundreds of leading citizens accepted invitations to be present, and the President and Cabinet, with the Governors of neighboring States, Gens. Sherman, Sheridan, and McDowell, and several members of the Diplomatic Corps at Washington, also signified their intention of attending. The substitution of a reception for a banquet was subsequently decided on, and about 700 invitations issued for the occasion. The reception will take place at the Union League Club-house on the 4th prox.

Ex-Gov. Fairchild.

The Milwaukee Chamber of Commerce has adopted a series of resolutions setting forth that they have great satisfaction in learning of the appointment of Hon. Lucius Fairchild to be consul of the United States at Liverpool, and saying: "Although he is not connected with our body as a member, this Chamber recognizes in ex-Gov. Fairchild a citizen of Wisconsin especially distinguished for gallant and meritorious service in the army, and for an able and faithful discharge of the duties of civil office, and does most heartily commend him to the merchants and business men of Liverpool, and bespeak for him their good will and esteem."

The Political Situation in the Assembly Less Encouraging.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—Special dispatches from Paris, to the London evening papers, report that the situation is gloomy. The majority in the National Assembly, it is stated, has determined to adhere to the position it has taken, and a compromise of the differences between the Executive and Legislative Departments of the Government is regarded as improbable.

PARIS, Nov. 25.—It is announced today that the members of the party of the Right in the National Assembly have selected Gen. Changarnier as their candidate for President of the Republic, in the event of the resignation of M. Thiers.

Report of the Committee on the Address—Rupture between Thiers and the Right Complete—The Majority Disposed to Accept His Resignation if Offered.

PARIS, Nov. 25—Evening.—The Committee on the Address have completed their report. They propose the immediate nomination of a select Committee of fifteen to draw up a bill, providing for the creation of a responsible Ministry. They declare a reply to the Presidential message unnecessary, because M. Thiers is the Assembly's delegate. The report suggests no solution of constitutional questions.

The minority of the Committee favorable to the President have resolved to prepare a counter report.

The report of the majority, which makes the rupture between President Thiers and the "Right" complete, causes much anxiety in political circles.

Le Soir advises the President to retort in a second message.

The majority of the "Right" is disposed to accept Thiers' resignation, if tendered, and appoint Gen. Changarnier Dictator, with the Duke de Broglie and MM. Batbie and Desjardins in the Cabinet.

Arrests of Radical Leaders in Rome—"Orsini" Bombs Seized by the Police.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—A dispatch from Rome to the Echo says five persons who were prominently connected with the movement to hold a radical meeting in that city yesterday have been arrested, and will be tried on the charge of high treason. No disturbance followed this action of the Government authorities, and the city remains quiet. A case, filled with "Orsini bombs," destined for Rome, has been seized by the police at the railway station in Leghorn.

Arrival of King Victor Emmanuel in Rome—Attacks on the Government in the Chamber.

ROME, Nov. 25.—King Victor Emmanuel has arrived in the city.

At the sitting of the Chamber of Deputies to-day, Signor Nicotera moved a resolution censuring the Government for the needless and offensive display of military force in the capital during the past three days. Minister Lanza and others spoke in justification of the measures taken by the authorities to preserve order, and the debate was adjourned. Signor Nicotera subsequently withdrew his motion, fearing it would unfavorably affect the parties recently arrested. At the same sitting Deputies Nicoti and Corrutti attacked the foreign policy of the Government.

Monsignor deMerode, Private Chaplain of the Pope, is again reported to be ill.

PEDESTRIANISM.

Observations Made on a Walk of 1,100 Miles—Boots Preferred to Shoes—Use of Sun Umbrellas.

To the Editor of the San Francisco Alta:

Your paper of the 24th instant contains a letter giving an account of my late walk. The many inquiries it has called out suggests my adding the following observations:

Before starting, I was strongly urged to wear shoes, ("English walking shoes,") and my own prejudices were in their favor, but careful deliberation told me of the fearful dust to be encountered, following, as we would have to, most of the way, a thoroughly-traveled road that had not seen rain for months, and also of the necessity of having to take boots or shoes off many times each day to bathe the feet. This decided me in favor of high top-boots, the wisdom of which I had no occasion afterward to doubt; for miles and miles did we have to walk in one, two, three, and four inches in dust, and to realize what it would be to sit down by streams of water to undress and dress the feet in the condition they would be, after such walking in shoes, is to leave no doubt as to the point of convenience being with the boots. The pants were also protected from the dust by being worn inside of them. Of their relative merits, as to ease of the feet, I cannot speak, never having had experience in the shoes, but one thing I did discover, is that the feet can be saved much irritation and many blisters by the use of insoles (boots or shoes having been made large enough to admit them.) The greater friction between an easy-fitting boot and the foot, is at the fore part of the front foot. Every time the heel raises, the relative position of the foot and the sole of the boot must change, causing great friction, as the entire weight of the body is upon the foot at the time of change between foot and boot. An insole, if a trifle shorter than the boot, will take much of this friction from the foot, as it must then take place, to a great extent, between the insole and sole of the boot. A second insole will relieve the foot still more. They will also furnish the additional advantage of relieving the feet when much swollen, by taking them out. No matter how toughened the feet become, they will blister very readily if rapid walking is persisted in, say for the space of three or four hours, while at a pace that is not unduly exhausting the system they will not feel the slightest discomfort.

We practiced bathing feet, hands, and head very often, say from three to six times a day, when water was found, and when we were tired and exhausted it would have a very exhilarating effect.

Rapid walking, or "spurts," at the rate of four miles an hour, of two or three hours' duration, or long marches, say twelve miles or more, without a halt, are very exhausting. If indulged in, in the early part of the day, it will incapacitate one for the balance of the day, or if at the close of the day, its effects will be felt the following day. The longest march we made without a halt was from Lafayette to the end of the Oakland pier—sixteen miles. This is done with but slight inconvenience; still if we had continued walking the balance of the day it would have cost us a great effort to accomplish a little. The same will apply to ascending high hills or mountains. Movements in such instances should be sufficiently moderate to avoid getting into a "pud" or perspiration, more than when moderately walking on the level.

The Graham crackers, upon which we principally existed, were baked hard and dry like sea biscuit, and we found it necessary to moisten and soften them before eating, and we resorted to the use of boiling hot water, breaking the crackers into it, and allowing them to absorb all the water they would. The hot water seemed so grateful to us that we soon fell into the way of taking it freely, and were often astonished at the quantity we consumed. Its use did away with much of our thirst while walking, and was beneficent in all of its effects. I venture the assertion that there is a virtue in the use of hot water, where great exertion is to be endured, that is not generally understood. By hot water I mean water that has been made to boil and then taken as hot as it can be borne; tepid water is unpalatable.

In our preparations, it was proposed that we carry sun umbrellas. I did not second the proposition, believing their use would not compensate the trouble of carrying them, I yielded, however, and subsequent experience convinced me of their great value to us. Our estimate was that we could perform one-fourth more with than without them, whenever the temperature was above ninety. We suffered more from heat in the mountains than in the valleys, as in the hills and the forests both served to break the wind, and with no air astir and the temperature at ninety-five to ninety-eight, we could feel all there was of the sun. We were never without a breeze in the large valleys.

These statements are not given as ascertained facts, but as impressions only, and may differ widely from the experience of others. For the information of those who have not read the letter above referred to, I will say that these observations were made during a walk from Portland, Oregon, to this city, and a tramp over Sonoma, Napa, and Lake Counties in this State, in all, about 1,100 miles.

Very respectfully, H. A. KENDALL.

EVACUATION DAY.

Celebration in the City Yesterday—The Veterans and the Visit of the Pennsylvania Grays.

The evacuation of New-York by the British troops eighty-nine years ago was yesterday celebrated in the usual manner by a military parade. In accordance with an invitation extended to the First Regiment of the National Guard of Pennsylvania, by the Seventh of New-York, that regiment arrived from Philadelphia about 10 o'clock in the forenoon and was met by Col. Emmons Clark, at the Desbrosses-street Ferry. The First, which is known as the "Old Gray Reserves," of Pennsylvania, consisted of six companies, numbering 350 men, and was officered by Col. J. W. Latta, Lieut.-Col. R. D. Barson, and Captains Muldoon, O'Callahan, Doocy, Dunne, Walters, Gilpin and Kretchman. The regiment passed up Broadway—being greeted along the line with loud plaudits—to the Grand Central Hotel, and after partaking of dinner, were escorted through the City by members of regiments of the National Guard. At 3 o'clock the Philadelphians formed in Bond-street, and escorted by the Seventh Regiment, marched down Broadway, which presented a festive appearance, nearly all of the principal buildings displaying banners and flags. The line of march extended to Beaver-street, through Broad-street and Maiden-lane to Broadway, and thence by way of Park-row to the City Hall, where they were reviewed by the Mayor and Major-Gen. Shaler. The soldierly bearing of both regiments excited the admiration of the vast throng that filled the plaza, and they were repeatedly cheered. At the conclusion of the parade the visitors were hospitably entertained at the Seventh Regiment armory, and after an interchange of friendly courtesies, departed in squads to be the guests of officers and men at their private residences. During the evening the theatres and other places of amusement were visited, and at 12½ the citizen soldiers of the Quaker city returned to their homes, highly pleased with the first visit ever paid New-York by a Pennsylvania regiment.

The veterans of 1812 met in the morning at St. Paul's Church, to participate in the celebration of the day, and, after thanks rendered for another year added to their already-extended life-term, where conveyed in a large stage, drawn by eight horses, to the armory, at Forty-sixth-street and Seventh-avenue; thence, with an escort of the Sixth Regiment, they proceeded to the old block fort, in Central Park, at One Hundred and Tenth street, and raised a flag upon a staff recently erected there. A brief address was delivered by Mr. Warner, and a salute fired from a six-pounder, at the foot of the hill. The veterans were then taken back to the Sixth Regiment Armory, where a dinner was given in their honor.

THE NEW-YORK TIMES.

The Provincial Press Sees Just What is Needed and Tells the Whole Truth.

From the Elmira Advertiser.

The NEW-YORK TIMES is now fairly installed as the Metropolitan National Republican organ. As a newspaper it is second to none, and as a political educator it is strictly firstclass. It is safe to say that at least one half of the Tribune subscription patronage was due to its politics. By the first of January all that will be transferred to the TIMES. And so one half of the value of the Tribune establishment is extinguished unless the loss can be made up elsewhere. But where is this new patronage to come from? It cannot hope to supplant the World and the other Democratic papers—the Democrats do not want it. As to its boasted independence, that field is occupied by the Herald; and as a nobody and nothing paper it seems as if it must dwindle down to a third or fourth rate concern, with a meagre circulation, and no influence in national affairs. At any rate we shall see which can do the best—the Republican Party without the Tribune or the Tribune without the Republican Party.

From the Moravia News.

Now what have we, Republicans, to fill the place of the old "two-beats-to-the-measure" Tribune? We have a lively, wide-awake, and most interesting journal. A paper of the times, and with the NEW-YORK TIMES on his table no person need want for a full and comprehensive account of the proceedings of our State Legislature, the National Congress, American Institute Farmers' Club, or anything to interest the solid reader. The correspondence and literary departments are filled with the choicest reading, and the news, like all the departments, is carefully looked after. Friends, we have the cool end of the poker on this as well as the Presidential question, and let us keep it. Don't be caught twice with the same bait. Occasionally speak a good word for the TIMES, and when the proper time arrives, see that your name is on a club list, and let the TIMES have, as it deserves, the largest circulation of any paper published on Uncle Sam's plantation.

From the Daily Saratogian.

A year ago, planting itself squarely on the question of municipal and State reform, it opened so vigorous a campaign on Tweed and his colleagues, waging the war almost single-handed for a long time, that Tammany tottered and fell to the earth before its tremendous blows. The campaign then and thus begun properly ended with the re-election of President Grant, and to the NEW-YORK TIMES more than to any other newspaper does the country owe this splendid triumph. Therefore it naturally takes the first place in the ranks of the Republican Party Press. The NEW-YORK TIMES occupies a position which it has fairly and honorably won. It has the confidence of the majority of the people. The Tribune has forfeited that confidence, and until it shows fruits meet for repentance will continue to be regarded as the bitter enemy of the Republican Party, and of the President-elect.

The Greenville Ring.

Justice Geo. W. Dilloway, who made the affidavits on which three of the Greenville Commissioners were arrested for malfeasance in office, and who was on Saturday arrested and held to answer a charge of perjury, was yesterday arrested on three warrants, charging him with false imprisonment. The warrants were issued at the instance of Messrs. Seymour, Morrell, and Cadmus, who were arrested. The prisoner was taken before Justice Chambers, and held in $1,000 bail on each charge. The Justice fixed Tuesday, Dec. 3, as the day for the examination, and as the matter is being pressed he will probably be held at that time to answer before the Grand Jury.

The Independence Centennial in New-Jersey.

The Board of Corporators of New-Jersey for the Centennial Celebration of Independence yesterday held their second meeting, at Taylor's Hotel, Jersey City. Gov. Parker, Hon. Amos Clark, Gen. Mott, ex-Mayor Peddie, Hon. Orestes Cleveland, Mr. J. G. Stevens, and others were present. Gov. Parker was made Chairman, and Mr. Charles Hewitt Secretary. Gov. Parker reported an address to the people of the State, which had been prepared, and which was adopted. Mayor Peddie offered a resolution that meetings be organized in each county, township and city, and a thorough canvass of the State be made in the interest of the Commission, which was adopted.

A Boy's Description of a Bear.

From the Rondout Freeman, Nov. 25.

On Friday last, Johnnie, a young son of J. Hasbrouck Basten, who lives on a farm in Marbletown, saw a strange-looking animal eating pumpkins in the lower part of a field not far from the house, and calling two dogs he went to see what the "varmint" was. The oldest dog on approaching the animal would not attack it, but the young one "went for it" forthwith, when, as the boy says, "the thing sat up on its hind legs and boxed the dog over with his hands," and finally made for the woods, the boy following. The animal took refuge in a tree and the boy went to the house for a gun, but in the meantime it began to snow so rapidly he did not return to prosecute the hunt. From the description the animal seems to have been a bear cub, rather an unusual visitor in a part of the country so thickly settled.

Caught in His Own Trap.

From the Boston Gazette, Nov. 24.

A well-known merchant closed his house at the South End during the Summer, and, being very desirous to guard it securely against the inroads of burglars, arranged a bear-trap, which requires two men to spring, in his wood-shed, through which any one must pass in order to gain access to the house. He went away and remained a month, when he came to the city for a day, and thought he would go up and see if his house was all right. He entered the front door, which he left open, made an examination of the various apartments, and finally thought he would see that the back premises were secure. Forgetting his precaution against burglars, he walked rapidly into the wood-shed, and what was his consternation to find himself caught fast in his own trap! He naturally stooped in the endeavor to extricate himself, and by so doing only added to his discomfort, inasmuch as he could not regain an upright position. He shouted furiously, but without avail, since all his neighbors were absent, and so he was forced to remain in that position from 10 in the morning until 4 in the afternoon, when his son-in-law came to the house to obtain something for his wife. The young man was astonished to find the doors all open, and, on making a tour of inspection, became convulsed at finding his father-in-law in such an unhappy situation.

AMUSEMENTS.

Theatrical.

"ROUND THE CLOCK" AT THE GRAND OPERA-HOUSE.

A vast audience crowded the Grand Opera-house last night. The attraction consisted of a new piece, taken from the French, but extensively altered and localized, called "Round the Clock." Mr. Augustin Daly is to be credited with an adaptation which, whatever else may be said of it, includes a great deal of variety, and that of the sort best liked by a general audience. The traditions of "Tom and Jerry," and other choice dramatic translations of "life in town," are liberally drawn on in "Round the Clock," and it is furthermore backed up by an immense diversity in the way of fun and extravagance, local allusions, acrobatic and pugilistic marvels, radiant dresses, and pretty scenes. The latter are chiefly pictures of well-known buildings, and places in New-York, and are to be praised for fidelity, as well as for other merits. An attempt has been made, which is in some cases very successful, to fit the parts to the chief artists of the Grand Opera-house company.

These parts include what may be called, to some extent, prototypes of Corinthian Tom, Jemmy Green, Bob Logic, Corinthian Kate, and other of the figures of the once famous piece that pictured "life in London," and the chief idea is to gain success through appeal to the same tastes and fancies that find delectation in "Tom and Jerry." The chief artists are Mr. John Brougham and Mrs. John Wood. There is a reproduction of a "sporting crib," a view of Niblo's, behind the scenes, during the performance of the "Black Crook," a masked ball of the Liederkranz, and other choice passages of metropolitan diversion, all of which were welcomed last night by the audience with the pleasure that suggests familiar and gratified acquaintance. The effect of these scenes was aided by the co-operation of the Majilton family, the Lauris, and by Messrs. Dooney Harris and Barney Aaron.

There are a good many difficult "sets," and these, together with the context, carried the performance to a very late hour. "Round the Clock" begins with the reading of a will, like "Money," and ends with the "Can Can" like the "Grande Duchesse." There are not a few striking situations and effects in the drama, and there is certainly a good deal to laugh at in it. On the other hand, there are things that might wisely be omitted, as being neither funny nor delicate. Perhaps the great number of characters, and the peculiar description of some of the scenes, made such mistakes almost unavoidable, and we shall not, at all events, condemn the whole play for what, after a first representation, may probably be carefully excised. It is undeniable that a stupendous effort has been made by the manager to give his patrons something entirely "new and strange," and he has lavished money and labor without stint to compass his purpose. As regards the general dramatic use and moral worth of such plays as "Round the Clock," as well as concerning the particular qualities of that drama itself, we shall try to write at a more convenient time. The piece ended at a very late hour last night, after evoking almost measureless laughter, and sometimes boisterous applause; and it is announced for repetition every night until further notice.

WOOD'S MUSEUM.

"The Wandering Dutchman" is the title of the new play in three acts, produced for the first time last evening, at Wood's Museum. As may be inferred from the name, the piece sets forth the eventful travels of a good-natured German in quest of something which proves to be an heiress to the property of the German's dead benefactor. Mr. Johnny Thompson, who assumes the principal part, finds in it ample opportunity for the display of his peculiar accomplishments, which consist of banjo solos, dances, and the clever use of a variety of instruments. These afforded, yesterday, much amusement to quite a large audience, whose good nature was rewarded by the final exhibition of virtue's victory over vice, and the discovery of the fair one in the person of Mary Roberts, personated by Miss Gussie De Forrest. The piece will be repeated every night this week.

Musical.

ITALIAN OPERA.

"Linda di Chamounix" was sung at the Academy of Music, last evening. The opera is a familiar one; but either on account of a lack of picturesqueness in the story, or a paucity of salient numbers in the score, it does not hold the place in the repertory which its author's name would seem to entitle it to. As in former years, Miss Kellogg, last night, represented Linda. The part is a difficult one in respect alike of the singing and acting it requires, and when we say that it was filled with fidelity and effect, we intend to imply a good deal more than would be expressed by kindred terms applied to many characters whereof the assumption is more widely appreciated. We can compliment Miss Kellogg on yesterday's work, and, as usual, we can compliment her most upon that portion of it which depends chiefly upon the vocalist. We are, therefore, able to say that the difficult opening cavatina, known as "O luce," was exquisitely sung, admitting, however, some disappointment at the prefatory and exceedingly expressive and charming recitative, commencing "Ah! tardai troppo;" and to declare the duet in the first act with Carlo, the duet in act the second with Il Marchese, and the third duet with Antonio capital performances, while, vocally, the remainder of the lady's share of the entertainment was, if less prominent, quite as creditable to her talent as a musician. In the highly dramatic incidents of the second act, when Linda learns from Pierotto the intentions of her lover, and straightway becomes demented, Miss Kellogg approved herself a painstaking and an earnest, if not a very powerful actress. The other rôles in "Linda" were taken by Señorita Sanz, and Signori Vizzani, Moriami, and Ronconi. Miss Kellogg was called before the curtain after the second act had terminated.—This evening, Mme. Lucca will be heard in "Don Giovanni," at the Brooklyn Academy of Music. To-morrow that gifted prima donna will will sing in "La Favorita" for the last time this season.

Miscellaneous.

KELLY & LEON'S MINSTRELS.

Kelly & Leon's variety company opened at No. 718 Broadway, last evening. The troupe has been greatly enlarged during the season, and the entertainment given last evening, in novelty and variety, left nothing to be desired. The programme is changed, we ought to state, every night, and if amusement be sought by the visitor to this establishment, he will assuredly on no occasion be disappointed. Mr. Leon's vivacity never deserts him, and his imitations of popular vocalists last evening literally "brought down" the house. Matinées are to be given on Saturdays, and a special day affair will occur on Thanksgiving Day.

Proposed Colony of Elsassians in Kansas.

From the Leavenworth Times, Nov. 22.

Yesterday we received a call from Gen. J. D. Mac Adras, of France. He visits Kansas in the interest of a proposed colony from the province of Elsass, and says if the State will co-operate with him and give reasonable encouragement to the immigrants, a colony of 30,000 can be brought here. He hopes to bring the subject before the Legislature at its next session, with a view of getting State assistance to carry out the immigration scheme. Gen. Mac Adras is an ex-deputy of the Assemblée Nationale, and is thoroughly conversant with the necessities and desires of the residents of Elsass and Lorraine.

THE NEW COMMISSION.

Composition of the Board to Suggest Amendments to the Constitution of the State.

From the Albany Journal, Nov. 23.

The Commission to propose amendments to the Constitution having been confirmed, and the certainty that it will soon enter upon its labor being assured, much interest will be felt in its personnel. Many of the members are already well known to the people of the State, and all of them, we believe, are judicious and excellent men. The proportion of lawyers and laymen is well adjusted, and the gentlemen selected are regarded as well adapted to their trust. The equal division of the Commission between the two parties gives assurance that no political advantage will be attempted.

The members of the First Judicial District are George Opdyke, John J. Townsend, John D. Van Buren, and Augustus Schell. Mr. Opdyke is the well known and able merchant of New-York. He has been Mayor of the City, and served in the Constitutional Convention of 1867, in which he was a member of the important Committee on Finance. Mr. Townsend is a lawyer of good rank, and was a member of the Assembly in 1850 and 1851. More recently he has been Chairman of the Republican General Committee. Mr. Van Buren is the present private secretary of Gov. Hoffman, and, with his ability and knowledge of State affairs, is well qualified for this duty. Mr. Schell is the distinguished financier of New-York, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and member of the Convention of 1867.

Mr. Odle Close, of Westchester, is a lawyer of fine standing, a partner of Senator Robertson, a graduate of Yale, and a gentleman of high attainments. Benjamin D. Silliman is an eminent lawyer of Brooklyn. Erastus Brooks is the cultured editor of the New-York Express, and, besides being a graceful speaker, is a man of ripe experience in the affairs of the State, having served in the Senate and in the Convention of 1867. John J. Armstrong is one of the leading lawyers of Suffolk. Robert H. Pruyn, of this city, is everywhere known throughout the State as an able and cultivated gentleman; at various times Speaker of the Assembly, Adjutant-General, and Minister to Japan, he has had an honorable public career and possesses rare aptitude and capacity for public affairs. His ample legislative experience, his skill as a presiding officer, and his practical sagacity peculiarly qualify him to participate in a Convention for the revision of the Constitution. Of Mr. Cassidy it is only necessary to say that he is the accomplished editor of the Argus, and was a member of the Convention of 1867, in which his suggestive counsel and acquaintance with the principles of government gave him marked influence. Cornelius L. Tracy is an experienced lawyer, now residing at Lansingburg. George C. Burdett is a prominent business representative of Troy, and was a member of the Assembly of 1865.

James M. Dudley resides at Johnstown, has been Judge of Fulton County, and is a sound lawyer. Edward W. Foster, of Potsdam, St. Lawrence County, has been many years Chairman of the Board of Supervisors, and to his special familiarity with all matters pertaining to the internal affairs and the organic structure of our system of local government, unites wide general knowledge and clear judgment. Artemus B. Waldo, residing at Port Henry, has for years been one of the foremost lawyers of Essex County, and has a high repute in his section for vigor of understanding and strength of character. Samuel W. Jackson, of Schenectady, was appointed by Gov. Hoffman to fill the vacancy upon the Supreme Bench, created by the resignation of Judge Rosekrans last year, and is a lawyer of recognized standing.

Ralph McIntosh, of Vernon, Oneida County, is a layman of judgment and experience, and served in the Assembly of 1850. Elias W. Leavenworth, of Syracuse, was a member of the Assembly in 1850 and 1857, and Secretary of State in 1854 and 1855. He is one of the soundest and most sagacious men in the State. Daniel Pratt, also of Syracuse, has been Judge of the Supreme Court, and ranks among the first lawyers of his section. Francis Kernan is the late Democratic candidate for Governor. He served in the Convention of '67, and his high legal accomplishments and strength of intellect will make him one of the leading minds in this. Mr. Chapman, who was designated as one of the members for the Sixth District, declines because of his appointment as Superintendent of Insurance; and Francis M. Finch, of Ithaca, a lawyer of high accomplishments and standing, has been substituted in his place. Jonas W. Preston, of Delhi, Delaware County, is also a lawyer much esteemed in that part of the State. Lucius Robinson, of Chemung, has served in the Assembly and as Controller, and is one of the marked men of the body. John F. Hubbard, Jr., of Chenango, is the late Democratic candidate for Canal Commissioner, was a member of the Senate from 1868 to 1872, and is a man of much sense.

Horace B. Howland, of Port Byron, stands at the front of the Bar of Cayuga County. David Rumsey, of Bath, Steuben County, was a member of the Convention of 1867, and is one of the keenest and most clear-headed lawyers of the State. George B. Bradley resides at Corning, Steuben County, was the Democratic candidate for Senator a year ago, and holds a high rank in the legal profession. Van Rensselaer Richmond is well known as having been State Engineer and Surveyor for a period of six years, and will bring to the Convention ample knowledge and ripe judgment upon all matters relating to the canals. Sherman S. Rogers ranks among the first lawyers of Buffalo, and has high capacity for the work in which he will now share. Benjamin Pringle, of Genesee, has been a member of Congress, has served upon the Bench, and is a strong man. Cyrus E. Davis, of Niagara, has been the candidate of his party for County Judge, and has good standing in the profession. Lorenzo Morris, of Chautauqua, was the Democratic Senator from that district in 1868 and '69.

The Democratic members of the Commission were selected by Gov. Hoffman, and the Republican members by the Republican Senators, from the respective districts. Both the Governor and the Senators were prompted by the desire to name men of special fitness for this particular work, and, reviewing the list, it may fairly be concluded that in the main they have succeeded. Much depends, of course, upon the theories of government entertained by the members, and their views as to the principles upon which the fabric of the organic law should be constructed. These points, which vitally affect the success of their work, remain to be developed. But, looking to the personal fitness and qualifications of the members, the composition of the body is promising.

Christ Church, Charleston, S. C.

ST. NICHOLAS HOTEL,
Saturday, Nov. 23, 1872.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Permit me space in your valuable journal, which has already so warmly advocated my mission to this City, personally to direct the attention of the Christian people of New-York to the wants of the minister and church which I represent. I have never before in my life solicited money for any cause whatsoever, and would not do so in this instance but from the fact that I was appealed to in the most pathetic language by my minister, Rev. J. Mercier Green, (whom I fondly cherish,) to come here and present the extremity of his church and himself to this people. Briefly, then, I would say that Christ Church, which was organized in 1853, continued its good work until 1863 under its present rector. At this time it became closed, and continued so until a few months since, when it was reopened under the most favorable auspices. It is located in a section in Charleston, S. C., where the humbler classes reside, and who are unable to furnish pecuniary aid of any moment. They do, however, all that they can. We want money to repair this church and its Sunday-school house; also a support for our rector, who, with his wife and family, are now in great need. If this church is once successfully in operation it can be kept alive by collections at home. I again ask this community, whose Christian liberality is so proverbial, not to reject this appeal. The cause has the cordial and unqualified indorsement of Right Rev. Horatio Potter, Bishop of New-York, and Rev. S. H. Tyng, D. D., rector of St. George's Church. And here let me take occasion to return my heartfelt thanks to Bishop Potter and Rev. Dr. Tyng for courtesies received. Dr. Tyng has been a warm and devoted friend to this noble mission ever since he became acquainted with its history. To me individually the many kindnesses of this venerated and beloved gentleman will ever remain as green leaves in my memory which time can never fade; and it is to the instrumentality and co-operation above alluded to, that I yet hope to bring to culmination a work to which I am devoting all the best energies of my nature.

A. C. KAUFMAN,
On behalf of the Vestry of Christ Church,

Robbery of a Church by a Woman.

From the Chicago Journal, Nov. 23.

Among the prisoners recently incarcerated in the County Jail to await trial is one, the story of whose detention is of somewhat more than usual interest. The prisoner is an old woman, named Mary Doyle. It appears, as the story is told, that several articles of a portable nature had mysteriously disappeared from the sacristies and altars of various Catholic churches. St. Peter's Church had suffered considerably by these removals, and no one connected with the church could divine by whose agency the missing articles were removed from the edifice. As supernatural events do not often occur in Chicago, it was suspected that some black sheep of the faith was instrumental in spiriting the articles away, and it was resolved to watch. In order to do this, it was necessary to secrete some one in the sanctuary who would be able to command a full view of the interior, and of every one who might enter. For this purpose, one of the "Sisters" was chosen, and hidden in the church so that no one could see her, while she could observe all. One afternoon, among others who visited the church, taking care to enter when she thought no one else was there, was Mary Doyle.

The old lady on entering the church devoutly crossed herself, and indulged in numerous genuflexions and other outward signs of veneration. Approaching the altar-railing she crossed herself and knelt as if in prayer for a moment or two, then arose and furtively glanced around the church, stretched forth her hand and attached a candlestick. Again the old sinner knelt, signed herself with the sign of the cross, rose once more, peered around the church, and again stretching forth her right hand grasped a missal. Placing the articles under her shawl, she retired reverentially from the altar, and left the church. All this was seen by the good watcher, who, unobserved, followed the old woman to her home, and then returning, related her experience to the pastor. Mary's arrest followed. In her house were found two cassocks, a fine clock, prayer-books, candlesticks, and several other articles of church property. Three or four days ago she was sent to jail to await trial.

NEW-YORK STATE.

Official Vote on Electors—An Error Detected and Corrected.

From the Albany Evening Journal.

The declared official majority for Electors, as published on Saturday, was erroneous. An error was subsequently detected in the footings, which places the majority at about the figures hitherto published in the Journal, viz., 53,525.

The subjoined table has been carefully compared with the last revised and certified copy in the office of the Secretary of State. The vote taken is that received by John A. King and Elias J. Beach, which more nearly approximates the average than the vote cast for the Electors at large.

The official vote of New-York and Kings for State officers and Congressman at large, has not yet been received at the office of the Secretary of State.

The Wool Trade and the Boston Fire.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The attention of wool dealers, manufacturers, and others interested in the staple has been called to an article in the New-York Herald of Thursday last, gratuitously distributed, in which the writer seeks to reduce the loss of wool by the Boston fire to 2,000,000 pounds, or thereabouts. In support of his argument, he rushes into statistics of the quantity of wool grown in the United States for the last three years; the quantity in Boston Jan. 1, 1872, and how much is now in the hands of farmers and country store-keepers, all of which has about as much bearing upon the number of pounds destroyed, as it has upon the quantity of wool required to make a pair of pants for the Siamese Twins. The absurdity of his conclusion, that no more than 2,000,000 pounds were burned, is seen in the reports from Boston, which are deemed to be entirely reliable, that the quantity burned in one set of warehouses was about 2,234,000 pounds. It is a fact that the warehouses in the burned district were full of wool, a large quantity of which was held in storage for manufacturers and others; also large quantities which had been sold and were awaiting delivery as soon as the horse disease abated. Boston merchants had added considerably to their stocks in hand from the Philadelphia and New-York markets, as well as from farmers in the country. Besides, it is a fact that the only large buyers in the three markets were the Boston dealers. Any one knowing how the wool trade was concentrated in Boston, and that nearly every wool-store, with its stock, was destroyed, will readily perceive that the loss, with the largest allowance for salvage, can scarcely fall below the following figures estimated by Bostonians, whose desire to replenish their stocks would incline them to underestimate it. The following is the estimate: "Domestic wool, 8,695,000; foreign, 2,234,000; a total of 10,929,000. The classification, as nearly as can be ascertained, is as follows: Fleeces, 4,000,000; California, 2,500,000; pulled, 1,500,000; tub-washed, scoured, &c., 695,000; total, 8,695,000. The bulk of the 2,234,000 foreign was Australian, bonded in the warehouse of Morse, Denny & Co., and embraced nearly the entire stock of this description in the market. The large clothing houses were also in the burned district, and the bulk of their stocks was destroyed. Thus the amount of wool, woolens, and clothing destroyed by the fire must be equal to near 20,000,000 pounds. The destruction of manufactured wool, about 10,000,000 pounds, was not alluded to by the Herald writer, and, in his opinion, is of no importance in the estimate of loss. He is only fearful that the "greedy ring of speculators" will succeed in advancing the price for both a blanket and an overcoat to such a point as will be beyond his reach.

WOOLSACK.

The Vanderveer Will Case.

The famous Vanderveer will case was again before the Court of Errors and Appeals at Trenton, N. J., yesterday. The case is, it is well known, the most important of its class that has ever been before the New-Jersey Courts. The amount of property bequeathed by the testator was nearly half a million, and the different phases of the case occupied the public attention for several years. The question involved in the present suit before this Court, is whether the five cousins of the deceased are alone entitled to the estate, or whether the children of a deceased cousin are entitled to the share of their parent. The question at issue has never been adjudicated in the Courts of New-Jersey, and the decision will be looked to with great interest.

The Brooklyn Common Council—Assessments for Improvements.

The Brooklyn Board of Aldermen met yesterday, Alderman Bergen presiding. Mayor Powell sent in a veto of the resolution passed by the Board to cancel the assessments for sewers, &c., on the grounds occupied by the Free School and Industrial School on Willoughby-avenue, Classon-avenue and Graham-street, arguing that the power to cancel was not vested in the Common Council. The Street Commission, in a communication, asked the Board to confirm the following assessments for improvements on the streets named, viz.: Powers-street, from Wyckoff to President, $93 355 20; McDougal-street, from Fulton to Broadway, $24,193 91; Troy-avenue, from Atlantic-avenue to Crown-street, $48,122 93; Buffalo-avenue, from St. Mark's-place to city line, $20,329 93; Willoughby-avenue, from Grand to Classon avenues, $20,184 15; Fifth-street, from Fourth-avenue to Prospect Park, $61,283 81, and numerous other smaller amounts. The report was adopted. A petition was received from the Orphan Society, of Brooklyn, located on Atlantic and Kingston avenues, asking for the canceling of the assessments on their property for sewerage, &c., amounting to $5,363 31, and, after some debate, the consideration of the subject was laid over for one week. The Board confirmed the appointment of eight clerks to assist the Tax Collector, at this busy season of the year, in making out the tax-rolls.

Farewell Address of Rev. Oscar Hugo.

A very large audience was present at the Methodist Episcopal Church in Bedford-street, last evening, to listen to a farewell address from Rev. Oscar Hugo, who, after a residence of twenty-one years here, returns to his native country, Hungary. His discourse related to the changes in Hungary, through which a free Gospel could at length be preached to all without interference from priestly authority, and he also spoke of the dangers to free institutions in America through the extension of the influence of the Jesuits here. He was listened to with marked attention, and, on the conclusion of his address, a contribution was made toward the payment of his expenses home.

The Payment of the Bills of the Commissioners of Charities and Correction.

The Commissioners of Charities and Correction having applied for an appropriation to pay the expenses incurred by the Department, Controller Green, yesterday, in a letter addressed to Commissioner Bell, declined to pay over the money unless the bills and claims were first transmitted to the Department for audit and adjustment. In reply, Commissioner Bell assures the Controller that the Commissioners are indifferent as to the manner of payment, and adds that, in accordance with the Controller's request, all bills and claims incurred by the Department will hereafter be sent to the office of the latter.

Of Interest to Every Business Man.

NEW-YORK, Monday, Nov. 25, 1872.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The following letter, from a party who did "not send all of his eggs to market in one basket," proves which basket (or rather safe) is the best. Ninety-five per cent. of the Steam Safes in the Boston fire preserved their contents in splendid condition—saving over $1,000,000 in cash alone, besides papers of almost incalculable value—and, as a result, $70,000 worth of Steam Safes were sold to Boston merchants within a few days after the fire. Read the following letter.

Respectfully yours,
S. H. COLE, Manager.

To American Steam Safe Company, S. H. Cole, Manager, New-York Depot, No. 300 Broadway:

Our Steam Safe, purchased of you some six months since, together with a large Morris & Ireland Safe bought one month ago, of McNeale & Urban's recent make, which cost $400, were in our store, at No. 133 Congress-street, and fell into the cellar during the late conflagration. The contents of the Morris & Ireland safe, when opened, were found to be totally consumed, while the contents of the Steam Safe—papers, policies, &c.—were in good condition, and can be copied. The Steam Safe was the smaller, and was subjected to the severest test. Both were opened at the same time. Please send us, as soon as possible, another Steam Safe, as we have great confidence in your improvement.

Very truly, WHITE, OSGOOD & CO.

Turquoises.

On the picturesque old bridge over the Arno, in Florence, known as the Ponte Vecchio, the traveler finds himself strolling between two antique rows of toppling houses, the abode of the guild of goldsmiths. It would be strange indeed if even now there were nothing in the way of jewelry worth seeing in the City of Benvenuto Cellini. But that which most attracts and fixes the traveler's attention, is the abundance and beauty of the turquoises. This dainty and lovely stone, the name of which attests its Oriental origin, is to the charming Capital of Tuscany what the garnet is to Vienna, and coral to Naples. Yet the turquoise is neither found in Tuscany nor in Turkey, but in Persia. Khorassan supplies it chiefly to commerce by way of the great fairs of Tiflis in Armenia, and of Nischni-Novgorod in Russia. Messrs. Star & Marcus of No. 22 John-street, (upstairs,) have a number of fine specimens of this stone. The Shah of Persia is said to keep the best turquoises, as the King of Burmah keeps the best rubies. Yet it is so exquisitely adapted to the toilette, especially of our Northern and golden-haired beauties, that we do contrive to obtain it. It harmonizes admirably with brilliants. We do not know that we quite accept the ancient superstition that the wearer of a turquoise is safe from contagion; but we are quite disposed to believe that a susceptible person might not be safe, absolutely, from a lovely blonde wearing a set of turquoises and diamonds from the atelier in John-street.—World.

Beautiful embroidery is done with the "Domestic" Sewing Machine; also, braiding, now so much worn. The "Domestic" does everything in the way of sewing with remarkable acceptability; but perhaps its best quality is the ease with which it works. Next comes its reliability; it does not get out of order without ill-usage.

A machine will be furnished (for trial) to responsible parties, with an instructor, (without charge), upon application at our

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

No public sales were made yesterday, Monday, Nov. 25, but the attendance at the Exchange was unusually large, and real estate matters were generally discussed. Considerable interest was evinced as to the result of the proposed transactions today, the number of which is greater than has been the case on any single day for weeks past, while in importance the auctions to occur are marked. Business should, therefore, be active, and it is so anticipated. A list of the sales to take place today was given in yesterday's schedule, so that a repetition is useless, but special attention is called to the sale of valuable City real estate belonging to the Banks' estate, by Muller, Wilkins & Co.; to the sale of house and lot No. 43 West Seventeenth-street, near Fifth-avenue, by Hugh N. Camp, and to the sale of property at Bay Ridge, Long Island, by E. H. Ludlow & Co. The auctions to occur in charge of other auctioneers will also be found well-worthy attention. In reference to the market generally we have nothing of particular interest to note.

At private contract, L. Friedman, No. 112 Broadway, reports having sold two plots of the Dyckman estate, located as follows: For $9,000, one plot, 50 by 153, on the south-west corner of Dyckman-street and Broadway, and one plot, 38 by 196 by 3.8 by 195, on the south-east corner of the same avenues. The same broker also reports having sold four lots, each 25 by 175, belonging to the Chittenden estate, situate on the west side of New-street, for $3,000.

Convertible Bonds; which bonds were for $1,000 each, bearing date Nov. 1, 1872, and payable in thirty years, with interest coupons attached due May 1 and Nov. 1, free of all State and United States taxes, with the right of conversion at any time between Nov. 1, 1875, and Nov. 1, 1877, at par, into the capital stock of the Company; with a provision that, should the Company thereafter execute a mortgage to secure the payment of any other of its obligations, these bonds shall be included in such mortgage. The bonds were either to be registered in the name of the owner, or pass as "bearer" bonds, as desired, from time to time.

Simultaneously with this offer came a severe pressure in the money market, and also the difficulties with the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company, resulting in an effort by them to procure an injunction. The amount of bonds placed was seriously affected by these causes, and many stockholders were prevented taking their pro rata, who would otherwise have desired to secure them. Only $1,885,000 of the issue have been disposed of, and the Company now offer to the stockholders, irrespective of pro rata, the privilege of taking the remaining $1,115,000, at par, paying also the interest from Nov. 1. This offer will remain open till Nov. 30, the earliest applicants being first supplied.

THANKSGIVING APPEAL

OF THE
FIVE POINTS HOUSE OF INDUSTRY,
No. 155 Worth-st.,
THANKSGIVING, NOV. 28, 1872.

The Trustees of this institution hereby make a most earnest appeal for help. The funds during the Summer have been inadequate to supply the needs of the House, and the Treasury is very largely in debt. The work must be curtailed unless the friends of the institution come to the rescue, and the Board, therefore, urgently appeals to all interested in the welfare of poor children for increased contribution, to make the Thanksgiving season even more joyous than usual. The work of the year shows:

About fifteen hundred inmates cared for.

Three hundred and eighty thousand meals given.

One hundred and fifteen thousand pounds of bread, besides potatoes, groceries, fuel, &c., used in the House, and given to out-door poor.

Fifteen hundred and fifty-one children taught in our school for the year ending Oct. 1.

Two hundred and forty children now living in the House.

The average monthly expenditure is about $3,000, for which the institution is dependent mostly upon voluntary contributions.

For all amounts, no matter how small, checks are more sure to reach us safely, and contributions of small sums as well as large will be gratefully received.

On Thanksgiving our made children will be at dinner from 1 until 2 o'clock.

After our children have eaten, we open our doors to all who desire to come to the feast. The sight is usually an affecting one—men, women, and children, pinched by hunger and want, flock to our tables. We desire to make preparations for fifteen hundred.

Services will commence in the chapel at 12 o'clock, and continue until about 4 o'clock. All are invited to attend these interesting exercises, which will consist of addresses, singing of glees, anthems, calisthenics, light gymnastics, and recitations by the children.

Clothing and materials, new or second-hand, and all articles of food, will be gratefully received and called for, on notice being sent to the House.

Trustees—(Who are also Incorporators.)—Morris K. Jesup, President; Hugh N. Camp, Treasurer; Geo. F. Betts, Secretary; Charles Ely, Marshall Lefferts, Frederick G. Foster, A. Van Rensselaer, D. Lydig Suydam, G. H. Morgan.

Incorporators.—Hiram Barney, William T. Booth, T. B. Bronson, William Smith Brown, W. E. Caldwell, A. G. P. Dodge, A. J. Peabody, James Donaldson, J. H. Earle, D. Willis James, G. H. Morgan, L. M. THE LATEST MURDER.

Death of "Billy Baker," the Seventh Ward Ruffian.

Investigation by the Coroner—Testimony of the Participants in the Affair.

Wm. H. Lee, alias Billy Baker, alias Jack Fenton, the ruffian who was stabbed in the abdomen during the fracas in front of Wm. Coffey's groggery, at the corner of Cherry and Pelham streets, on Sunday morning, as fully reported in the TIMES, died yesterday at Bellevue Hospital from the effects of the wound. He was unconscious for some hours before death, and did not make any statement in addition to that already published. During the afternoon Dr. Wooster Beach made a post-mortem examination of the remains of the deceased, which were laid out at the Morgue. The body was found of slight muscular development, and well nourished. An incised wound was found in the left groin, penetrating the abdominal wall, and was evidently made with a broad and sharp bladed knife. Another wound was found across the ball of the thumb of the right hand, and was very slight. The wound in the abdomen was found to extend from the point of entrance in a backward direction, and the intestines were divided in four different places. The escape of their contents caused peritonitis, which resulted in death.

Coroner Herrman, yesterday afternoon, commenced an informal investigation in the matter. The prisoners, who had been arrested on Sunday morning immediately after the stabbing, were brought to the Coroner's office by Capt. Mount, of the Seventh Precinct, and a detachment of his command. The prisoners were accompanied by a body-guard of their friends and associates, composed of as villainous an assemblage as ever besieged the Coroner's office. They became so violent in their conduct that the Coroner ordered them to be ejected, and guards were stationed at the doors to prevent their entrance.

Patrick Delaney, of No. 216 Cherry-street, who is supposed to have stabbed both Lee and Donovan, was first examined, and he stated that while at Coffey's grog-shop, on Sunday morning, he was assaulted, knocked down, and beaten by some of the gang belonging to the Rutgers Social Club. He, however, denied most positively that he stabbed any one, and also asserted most solemnly that he had no knife.

Wm. Coffey, the keeper of the groggery in front of which the difficulty culminated, stated that on Saturday night some men met at his place to issue tickets for a target excursion of the Rutgers Musketeers. A disturbance arose as to who should be the invited guests. Lee and Welsh became involved in a fight, which soon became general. A pistol shot was fired, but by whom he did not know. He did not see the stabbing.

John Welsh, of No. 62 York-street, Brooklyn, said that while outside of Coffey's place, he was knocked down, and lay there insensible until the Police arrived and carried him away. He did not strike or stab any one, and did not see any one stabbed.

Patrick Golden, of No. 148 Cherry-street, who is employed as a salesman at No. 261 Washington-street, said that he was in Coffey's place when Lee and Welsh had the dispute about tickets for the target excursion. Lee appeared very anxious to fight, and swore he could whip any one in or about the house. Lee and Welsh had a fight, and Golden, who was present, fired an old pistol, but did not shoot any person.

Patrick Roach, aged sixteen, of No. 4 Pelham-street, insisted that he knew nothing about the affair, and refused to make any statement.

As it was apparent that Thomas Radley, of No. 3 Pelham-street; John McTierney, of No. 221 Cherry-street, and Terrence Brannigan, of No. 214 Madison-street, were not engaged in the mêlée, the Coroner discharged them. Coffey and his daughter Abbie were also released on their own recognizance, to appear at the inquest. Delaney and Welsh were committed to the Tombs to await the result of the inquest, which will be held on Monday, and Golden and Roach were committed to the House of Detention.

Thomas Donovan, the young man who was stabbed in the back during the same fracas, is still lying at his home, No. 188 Cherry-street, in a very critical condition, and there are but very slight hopes entertained of his recovery. It will be remembered that Donovan stated positively, in his ante-mortem deposition, that Delaney stabbed him. Jack Radley, who was also engaged in the fracas, is still at large.

THE HOMICIDE RECORD.

A Few of the Cases Partially Explained—How the District-Attorney Keeps His Books.

The exhibit published in the TIMES yesterday of the disposition which has been made by the District-Attorney of the 118 cases of homicide sent to him since Jan. 1, 1870, has convinced that official of the necessity of making some public explanation of the facts. We have accordingly been favored with a document, prepared in his office by his clerks, which purports to give these explanations in twenty-eight cases. There is no pretense that our reporter did not faithfully take the facts as they appeared upon the records, and the explanations therefore simply amount to a confession that the books of the office are so imperfectly kept that they do not present a complete history of the business done. It is also apparent that no attempt is made to show an excuse for the leading fact that there have only been forty-two convictions out of these 118 cases.

The document sent us by the District-Attorney does not in any one case impugn the facts as to that case, so far as they were given by the TIMES, and in the few cases in which additional facts are given, as tending to show what has become of the accused, the District-Attorney merely admits that his books are not complete. His "corrections" are as follows:

June 27—Thomas Cobb killed Mary Cobb. Indicted Sept. 25, 1872; awaiting trial.
June 14—August Wood killed George Wood. Indicted Sept. 20; awaiting trial.
July 21—Nicholas White killed James Smith. Indicted Aug. 13, 1872; tried and convicted Oct. 21; third degree; awaiting sentence.
July 22—Jacob Bender killed Matthew Burke. Indicted Sept. 20; awaiting trial.
July 23—James Lamb killed Mark McDonald. Indicted Sept. 25; pleaded guilty Nov. 11; third degree; State Prison four years.
July 29—Timothy Collins killed Patrick Braniff. Bailed by Coroner. Being a case of a low degree of manslaughter, and party on bail, it has not yet been sent to Grand Jury.
Aug. 15—Mark Flanagan killed his wife. Indicted Sept. 18; tried and convicted of murder in second degree Oct. 19; State Prison for life.
Aug. 15—Joseph Dykes killed his wife. Indicted Sept. 25; pleaded guilty; fourth degree, Oct. 25; State Prison two years.
Sept. 18—Arthur Quinn killed M. Stanford. Papers received Nov. 12, 1872; not indicted.

1870.

June 16—Lawrence Sullivan convicted and sentenced to be hung. His sentence commuted by the Governor.
July 4—James Eagan. Indicted Sept. 19, a boy seventeen years of age. The deceased, in his ante-mortem, exculpated the prisoner, and upon a statement of the facts he was bailed by the Court. There was no evidence to convict him of anything.
July 9—John Campbell, James Boyle, John Stewart. Indicted Sept. 15; bailed by Coroner; indicted for manslaughter.
July 18—William Hamilton. Complaint dismissed by Grand Jury Sept. 14.
July 12—Thomas Donoghue. Received in District-Attorney's office from Coroner July 14, 1871, (one year after;) dismissed by Grand Jury March 4, 1872.
Aug. 9—James Nolan. Indicted Sept. 27, 1870; never arrested; Bench warrant issued Sept. 28, 1870.
Aug. 18—William Cavanagh. Indicted Sept. 27, 1870; Bench warrant issued Sept. 28, 1870; never arrested.

A TERRIBLE ACCIDENT.

Two Young Men Blown to Atoms, and Two Others Seriously Injured, by Nitro-Glycerine Explosion.

A terrible accident, causing the death of two young men, and severely, if not fatally, wounding two others, occurred yesterday, near Yonkers. Intense excitement now prevails in the vicinity. A TIMES reporter succeeded in gathering the particulars, to the effect that some time last Summer Mr. Coffin, contractor, who had been engaged in grading the road-bed for the New-York and Boston Railroad along the valley, about two miles east of Yonkers, went to Michigan, leaving some cans of nitro-glycerine at a point near the premises of Mr. Samuel Fulton. The explosive material, according to a statement made to Capt. Mangin, of the Yonkers Police force, by John Troy, a young man who, with some friends, passed the spot about two months ago, were in wooden boxes, with the neck of the cans projecting in the same manner as those of demijohns of oil of vitriol. The place was surrounded by a fence made of hemlock boards, upon each side of which was this notice:

"DANGER! DANGER! DANGER!!!
Let nothing tempt you to touch or even go near the contents of the inclosure. It is nitro-glycerine."

Notwithstanding this warning, four young men of Yonkers, named John Donnelly, aged nineteen years, a resident of Mulford-street; Wm. Terry, aged twenty-one years, of Vineyard-avenue; Michael Callagee, of Vineyard-avenue, and George Hill, aged nineteen years, a resident of Hillside, yesterday resolved to ascertain the effects of the nitro-glycerine, and while two of the party, Donnelly and Terry, shielded themselves behind large trees for protection, Callagee and Hill, or one of them, threw stones at the cans. A terrific explosion followed, resulting in blowing the two young men last named to atoms, and at last accounts received from the scene of the tragedy, not a vestige of one of them (Hill) has been found; fragments of his clothing only had lodged among the branches of trees near by. Although Donnelly and Terry were protected by the trees, the former was dreadfully lacerated from head to foot, and Terry was injured about the face, particularly one of his eyes, of which he may lose the sight. The windows of Mr. Fulton's coach-house were shattered to pieces by the shock. William Bogart, Mr. Fulton's coachman, on proceeding to an investigation, found Donnelly and Terry suffering from the effects of their injuries, and conveyed them to St. John's Riverside Hospital, at Yonkers, and notified Capt. Mangin. The police proceeded to the scene, and took charge of the remains. Donnelly and Terry received the necessary attention at the hospital. Upon the person of Terry about half a pound of powder and some percussion-caps were found. News of the affair spread with great rapidity in Yonkers, and the friends of the four young men soon made their appearance at police headquarters to ascertain the names and details. The people of Yonkers were much excited last evening in regard to the occurrence, all condemning Mr. Coffin for leaving the nitro-glycerine in a spot where any catastrophe could possibly occur.

Parisian Automata—An Interesting Display of Ingenious Mechanism.

Stories of the wonderful results achieved by the ingenuity of French artisans having reached this City, Messrs. Tiffany & Co. recently ordered from Paris an assortment of miniature automatons, which were received during last week, and yesterday added to the holiday ornaments on exhibition on the third floor of the Tiffany building, in Union-square. The entire number of figures on exhibition does not exceed 100, the assortment consisting of only the latest and most remarkable models, many of which have heretofore been known by report only on this side of the water. The number is sufficient, however, to attest the wonders which have been attained by mechanical ingenuity, as represented in miniature automata. Dolls of various sizes claim the chief share of the visitor's attention, and justly so, for it is not often that feminine fashion is better imitated. On approaching the corner set aside for the exhibition of the figures, the visitor is surprised at meeting a miniature lady dressed in the latest fashion, promenading the floor, and fanning herself the while with all the deliberation and affectation of a Broadway belle. Next, the melodious sounds, which have been heard meanwhile, are found to proceed from a harp in the hands of a little monkey, gayly dressed and perched in a very life-like posture on a piano-stool, and when his tune is finished another is "struck up" by an Italian peasant boy, who moves his little hands along the strings of a larger lyre. When the monkey stops his music he turns and grins affably to his audience on the right, while a change in the expression of his rival musician makes it appear as though the latter was immensely pleased at the opportunity for a display of his musical talents. When this miniature concert is over, the dolls resume their promenades, and not unfrequently come to grief against the swift-moving wheels of a velocipede, bestrode by an apparently expert gallant, who moves about in and out among the tables and cases with surprising rapidity. The sound of voice is well imitated in the speaking dolls, which distinctly articulate the magic syllables first known to childhood, and when laid in their cradles, cry with all infantine fretfulness. In addition to these specimens there are several wax-faced dolls, the limbs of which are so jointed that the figure can be made to assume any posture natural to mortals. The collection also includes a mechanical duck, which, when "in order," both walks and quacks. The figures are surrounded by French artificial flowers, made of linen, and so closely resembling the original beauty of nature, that many of the visitors expressed doubts as to their artificial character.

A Fatal Collision at Sea—Verdict Against the Cunarder Java.

On the night of Aug. 25, 1871, the Cunard steamer Java, while on her way from Liverpool to this port, ran into the Norwegian bark Anitas, striking her full amidships on the port side and cutting her completely in two, so that she filled and sank almost instantly. Her crew numbered twelve men, all of whom were drowned except one, who was picked up by a boat from the Java.

Mr. Petersen and another, the owners of the bark, began suit in the United States District Court in Admiralty, before Judge Blatchford, to recover damages, setting forth the above facts, and alleging that the collision occurred because the steamer did not keep a proper lookout. The answer of the defendant denied this, and alleged that two efficient lookouts were on duty, and that the accident was brought about by the bark improperly changing her course to cross the bows of the steamer.

Judge Blatchford holds that there is no evidence to support the latter allegation, and that there must be a decree for the libelants with costs, and a reference to a commission to ascertain the amount of damages.

The Andre Murder—Facts for Public Consideration.

The trial of Emile Andre for the murder of his wife, in this City, on the 13th of June last, was resumed, yesterday, in the Court of General Sessions, before Judge Bedford. Mr. Charles W. Brooks summed up the case of the defense, maintaining, on the evidence, that the prisoner was affected with emotional insanity at the time of the commission of the murder, and pleading for an acquittal. Assistant District-Attorney Fellows, in replying for the prosecution, ridiculed the idea of attributing the murder to the results of emotional insanity, and, he said, the immunity from punishment which such a plea almost invariably afforded contributed a vast deal to the terrible condition of crime in which our City was now plunged. Murder was as common as the recurrence of the day; many of them were accompanied by very atrocious circumstances, yet where were the convictions and where the punishments? The community had come to the conclusion that there was no law to punish murder, hence its frightful prevalence. The interposition of a plea of insanity was always followed by an acquittal, save where the prisoner is a poor, defenseless wretch, without money and without friends to provide him with counsel skilled and experienced in the technicalities of criminal law. With a great deal of truth, the Press pointed to the large batch of murderers now confined in the Tombs, unwhipped of justice, and he deplored the pernicious effect which it had upon the entire people. He reminded the jury that the acquittal of the prisoner on such a plea would retard justice, convince criminals of exemption from punishment for murderers, and reduce the moral condition of the City to an irretrievable depth of degradation. The District-Attorney's address lasted up to 6½ o'clock in the evening, when the Court adjourned.

English received a stab wound in the neck of a very dangerous nature, and Ahearn was stabbed in the head, and was but slightly injured. Splan was arrested and locked up at the Eighty-sixth-street Station-house. The wounded men were attended by Police Surgeon Thomas, and taken to their home. WHOLESALE PRODUCE MARKET.

Our quotations are the wholesale prices paid for sound merchantable Produce in good clean packages.

BUTTER—The receipts have been 10,098 pks. for the past three days; and 18,801 pks. for the week. There has been an improved demand noted in stock suited to the requirements of home buyers, particularly to the local and near-by trade, and firmer prices have been realized on the better grades, which have been offered with less freedom, at the ruling figures. Holders show much less urgency to realize on really prime to choice goods. The export call is at present very light. Shippers' bids run considerably under the views of sellers, and trade in this way is restricted. The receipts since Jan. 1 have been 598,870 pks., against 611,500 pks. same time in 1871; exports, 4,367,185 lbs., against 6,820,595 lbs. same time in 1871. We quote:

CHEESE.—The receipts during the past three days have been 19,424 boxes, and for the week 31,597 boxes. Buyers on home account are purchasing stock quite moderately, and to provide for pressing wants, for which purpose they are obliged to pay full rates for job lots of the best goods called for. From shippers there is not much inquiry noted. The scarcity of ocean freight room is against the outward movement. The cable quotation today is 65s., which indicates steadiness in the English market, but which is not sufficient to stimulate export dealings in the local market. The week's exports were 11,147 boxes. The receipts here since Jan. 1 have been 1,347,848 pks., against 1,348,000 pks. same time in 1871; exports, 63,903,383 lbs., against 66,174,591 lbs. the same time in 1871. We quote as follows:

State Factory, extra fine	14½ @14¾
